THE DIVORCE THAT DOESN'T HURT REAL BAD

Comedian Russell Peters hams it up for the camera in Toronto Wednesday while promoting his Notorious World Tour, which hits the Air Canada Centre this Saturday. Offstage, Peters is going through a divorce with his wife of two years. While the two have a baby daughter, Peters says there are "no hard feelings" in the breakup. Story, page 4. McGuinty gives a tip of the hat to serving bill

'Appetite' for change. NDP finance critic has been trying for years to ban owners from taking a percentage of tips

Ontario law should make clear that customers leave tips in restaurants and bars to reward the server and other staff, not the owners, Premier Dalton McGuinty said Wednesday.

"If we go to a restaurant and we put down a tip it is never part of our understanding that's going to go to the owner or management," said McGuinty. "It's about providing a little bit of extra income to those people who wait on the tables.... I think that's the implicit understanding we have as consumers, and I think we should have a law that reflects that."

NDP finance critic Michael Prue has been trying to ban owners and managers from taking a percentage of tips since 2010, and has reintroduced a private members' bill to outlaw the practice.

Prue received a lot of media attention and support for his idea on newspaper editorial pages, which he credits with helping convince McGuinty and the Liberals to take another look at his bill.

"There's such a public appetite for this that I'm not surprised the Liberals are thinking they better go with it too," Prue told reporters.

Labour Minister Linda Jeffrey initially said it was legal for owners to take a percentage of tips as long as that was made clear when people were hired.

McGuinty ordered Jeffrey to reconsider the NDP bill.

Raid. Cops traced weapons back to a June 4 shooting outside Pure Gold strip club

Police raiding an Oakville house have seized weapons that included an AR-15 assault rifle, equivalent to the military-style rifles carried by the Emergency Task Force.

"It has only one real purpose, and that is to kill people," Det. Const. Brendan Spelman told reporters Wednesday as this and other weapons were put on display.

"These are killing machines," Spelman said, adding the weapons have "tremendous stopping power and penetration power."

Two men are accused of attempted murder in connection with the raid earlier this month.

How police discovered the weapons can be traced to a June 4 shooting outside the Pure Gold strip club on Royal Windsor Drive in Oakville.

Several shots were fired in the direction of a car in the parking lot at about 2 a.m.

Police believe a man was targeted after a dispute erupted inside the club.

Three hours later, the assailants went looking for their target, police say. They thought they found him at an Eva Road apartment in the West Mall area of Etobicoke.

Shots were fired through a door and window, narrowly missing a person, as the assailants yelled out a man's name.

He was not home. The terrified man's stepfather told them his stepson had moved out.

Police later searched two houses in Oakville and found the weapons at one of them.

Police also recovered close to 600 rounds of ammunition and half a kilogram of powdered cocaine.

Police said the weapons will be tested to see if they have been used in other crimes.

Police believe one of the pistols was used in the second shooting in Etobicoke and that the weapon used in the first shooting is still out there.

Police say there is no evidence to suggest there are gang connections.

Other finds:

- Also seized were a pistol-grip Mossberg 12-gauge shotgun with a suppressor to quiet the muzzle blast and two .45 pistols, a Ruger and a Glock.
- Police also recovered close to 600 rounds of ammunition and half a kilo of powdered cocaine.

Andrew Kreston, 28, and Kelsey Evelyn, 34, both of Oakville, face attempted murder charges and drug and weapons charges.

Police are linking Evelyn to the second shooting, but not the first. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ex-officer gets 14 days for sex with teenager

A former Toronto police officer who admitted he had a sexual encounter with an underage boy before joining the force will serve the mandatory minimum 14 days in jail.

Brandon Fraser, 25, who was fired after serving as an officer for just seven months, was sentenced Wednesday by provincial court Justice Rebecca Shamai to 14 days in jail for having sex in 2009 with a youth who was either 14 or 15 years old.

He also received a year's probation, must provide a DNA sample, and will be on the sex-offender registry for 10 years.

He pleaded guilty to sexual interference Tuesday.

Court was told that before becoming an officer, Fraser, then 22, met a boy in 2008. They were found in a parked car at mall at 1 a.m. by Peel police. The boy initially told police he was 17, but moments later revealed his age was 14. Fraser was warned by the officers that it would be illegal if he and the boy had sex given their ages.

Despite that warning, Fraser took the boy to his Toronto apartment and they had sex. The boy later revealed this encounter to police.

The encounter came to light after Toronto police investigators looked into a sexual relationship that Fraser, who had since joined the force, was having with a 17-year-old he'd met in 2010.

Violence. Advocates call for national handgun ban

Gun-control advocates took aim at handguns Wednesday, calling for a national ban of the weapons they said are used only for violence.

Relatives of a Toronto man killed in a double shooting four years ago urged the Harper government to shift from defending long guns — the focus of a heated political and now legal battle — to tackling what they consider "a weapon of war."

Family members of Oliver Martin, who died at 25, said there is no reason for anyone to carry handguns, arguing that, unlike long guns, the smaller firearms serve no legitimate purpose.

"Handguns are easy to hide and are used, with few exceptions, for one purpose only: to wound or kill someone," said Susan Martin, speaking at a news conference on the anniversary of her son's death.

Martin and his friend Dylan Ellis, 26, were shot dead in a parked SUV in Toronto's entertainment district on June 13, 2008. The killing has so far remained unsolved.

A deadly shooting rampage at Toronto's Eaton Centre this month once again cast a spotlight on gun violence in the city, and several officials joined in on Wednesday's call for a crackdown on firearms.

‘No hard feelings’ in divorce: Russell Peters

Notorious World Tour. The comedian, who hits Toronto for a show on Saturday, touches on fatherhood and the end of his marriage in his new standup act

Comedian Russell Peters goofs around while promoting his Notorious World tour in Toronto on Wednesday. CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian comedy giant Russell Peters says he and Monica Diaz are on amicable terms as they go through a divorce.

The Brampton, Ont.-raised standup star recently revealed he and Diaz, who have an 18-month-old daughter, are splitting after nearly two years of marriage.

“It was actually a decent breakup. There were no hard feelings,” Peters, 41, said Wednesday in an interview to promote his Notorious World Tour, which hits Toronto’s Air Canada Centre on Saturday.

“We just realized we rushed in and didn’t know each other and when we got to know each other we were kind of like, ‘Hmm, I don’t think this is going to work out for the rest of our lives.’ And I didn’t want to wait until my daughter was older and got used to seeing us together and really mess with her head,” continued Peters, whose ethnically charged brand of humour has sold out arenas around the world.

“I said, ‘We should probably do it now before the baby understands anything, and then all the baby knows is mommy and daddy apart, but she knows that when mommy and daddy see each other, there’s no animosity and that, ‘Daddy loves you and mommy loves you and that’s the bottom line.’”

Peters, who was inducted into Canada’s Walk of Fame last year, married Diaz in August 2010.

Their daughter, Crystianna, was born in December 2010 in Los Angeles, where Peters has a home.

Peters says fatherhood and his divorce are among the topics he touches on in his new standup act, which in March became the fastest-selling concert in Dubai history, with tickets for two shows sold out in eight minutes.

The tour hits Calgary on June 19; Edmonton on June 21; Vancouver on June 23; and Winnipeg on June 27. The second leg of the Canadian tour will take place in September and October. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Province reaches out to families on autopsy organs

Ontario’s chief forensic pathologist, Dr. Michael Pollanen, speaks in Toronto on Wednesday. COLIN PERKEL/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario is looking to reunite 4,000 autopsy organs with the dead people’s relatives, or at least find out how families want the body parts disposed of.

In reaching out to the family members Wednesday, the province also apologized for its past failure to tell bereaved relatives that organs were being retained for further study.

Dr. Michael Pollanen, the province’s chief forensic pathologist, said withholding the information was done to spare relatives added grief, but times have changed.

“I’m sorry for any distress this may cause families,” Pollanen said.

“Based on today’s standards, we could have communicated more openly with families in the past.”

Relatives are being asked to contact the coroner’s office to find out whether an organ belonging to a deceased loved one may have been retained.

They can then ask that the body parts be returned to them at the coroner’s expense through a funeral home for cremation or burial.

If the family does not want organs returned, or for those that go unclaimed by next June, the coroner would then cremate them.

More information

- Those who wish to make inquiries can call 1-855-564-4122 or email organretention@ontario.ca.

Only deaths that occurred before June 14, 2010 are potentially affected, given the changes in procedure since then.

Pollanen conceded some families may not want to be “confronted” with the information but said it should not be up to the coroner to impose a course of action on them.

“It’s a sensitive issue,” Pollanen said. “We want to work with families to find a solution that’s best for them.”

Organs were retained in some cases post-autopsy to allow for further detailed study as part of the investigation that usually occurs in cases of suicides, homicides and sudden unexplained deaths.

They have been stored in forensic pathology units and hospitals around the province from as far back as the 1970s. THE CANADIAN PRESS

UofT seeks Canada’s first full-time, paid Muslim chaplain

A young woman looks directly into the camera and says in a soft accent: “I was told to go back to my country.”

A young man with a light beard follows: “In my profession, relationships are built at the bar; what am I supposed to do about that?” he asks.

And then, the more complicated issues: “My parents forced me to take off my hijab,” says another student, referring to the head scarf.

The anecdotes, told from the point of view of Muslim students at the University of Toronto, are gripping, complex and, as many youth can attest to, all too real.

They are also part of a promotional video intended to show the urgent need behind the Muslim Chaplaincy Program at U of T — the first program of its kind in Canada that would see the community fund a full-time chaplain at a university, to serve and support the spiritual and religious needs of Muslim students.

“Many Muslim youth don’t have a place to turn to, and they feel challenged on issues of faith and identity,” says Ruqqayyah Ahdab, the chair of the board of directors for the Muslim Chaplaincy Program at UofT, who was instrumental in the creation of the student led initiative.

“Adults can turn to the mosque for support, but youth often can’t because of cultural issues, or the age gap,” said Ahdab. “So the chaplain will be there to provide this safe space for youth to turn to.”

In Canada, Muslim chaplains have been utilized primarily in military and prison settings to help with issues of religious accommodation. Universities, including UofT, have been most often served by volunteer chaplains, often imams from the community struggling to juggle numerous time commitments.

But over the past five year, dozens of universities in the United States have hired Muslim chaplains on as staff, as a way to offer Muslim students on campus support in the tension-filled aftermath of 9-11. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Nik Wallenda: High & mighty

King of the High Wire.
On eve of attempt to cross Niagara Falls, the skywalker talks about faith, family, what's next

KATHY ULLYOTT
For Metro in Toronto

When he was 18, Nik Wallenda had his heart set on becoming a pediatrician.

But just one year later, his family, the legendary Flying Wallendas, was offered a once-in-a-generation opportunity: To re-enact the family's signature stunt, a three-tier, seven-person pyramid on a wire eight metres above the ground. In 1962, the pyramid had collapsed during a show in Detroit and killed two family members, paralyzing another.

Nik was in. And after the triumphal re-creation of the act in 1998, his path was set — on a cable just two fingers wide. This Friday the King of the High Wire will attempt to make history again by walking a wire across the thundering cataract of the Horseshoe Falls. We asked this very public man about some very private moments.

How are you preparing physically as well as mentally for the Niagara Falls skywalk?
I don't have a regular regimen; my workout changes every day depending on my schedule. I always walk several wires and I try to relax and rest. I also try to work in physical activity with my family — we'll play Frisbee, say, where you have to do 10 pushups if you miss a catch. Or catch it with your left hand only. I don't spend as much time with my kids as I'd like, so I try to be creative that way. Mentally: I don't meditate but I spend a lot of time praying, which is a kind of meditation. I'm a born-again Christian so I pray, I talk to God, a lot.

Do you think that religion, or belief in a higher power, is necessary for someone in your line of work?
Well, I can say there's no way I would do it without it.

Have you ever had a supernatural experience, on or off the wire?
I wouldn't say so, no. But I do believe that I'm surrounded by guardian angels at all times, whether I'm walking a wire or walking down the street.

What is your greatest dream for your children (Yanni, 14, Amadaos, 11, and Evita, 9)?
That they achieve their goals and dreams. And I like to think that as their father, I am inspiring them to do that. I love a challenge — in taking on Niagara Falls a lot of people said it can't be done, it won't be done. But when someone says to me something can't be done, that's my cue to find a way.

If there was one thing in your life you could go back and change, what would it be?
Honestly, I wouldn't change anything. Yes, I've had great successes and some failures. But the failures, the disappointments all contribute to what I am, where I am today. And I wouldn't change that for anything.

If you could have dinner with one historical figure and ask him/her anything you want, who would that be?
That would have to be my great-grandfather, Karl Wallenda (who brought the family from Germany to America in 1928, and died in a fall from a wire in Puerto Rico in 1978). I was born in 1979 but he clearly was my inspiration. I'd love to ask him about our family, hear the family history, hear his amazing stories.

But if you could ask him just one question?
I'd ask him if he is proud. People tell me he would be honoured by what I've accomplished, but I'd love to ask him how he feels, myself.

What happens after Niagara Falls?
I want to be a father and a husband for awhile. I've been consumed with this for six months — two years, really — and I really feel I've neglected my family. So I just want to spend time with them.

Parties wrangling ahead of omnibus-bill marathon

'Omni-mess'. Voting unlikely to end political fight over Tory budget bill

The tongue-in-cheek nickname for the omnibus Conservative budget bill is "the omni-mess" — an opposition sobriquet to describe 400-plus pages of legislation that make widespread changes to almost every facet of Canadian life.

But the term has also been sneaking into the Tory vocabulary of late as the government finds itself running up against unanticipated political fallout from the Jobs, Growth and Long-term Prosperity Act, also known as Bill C-38.

For the opposition parties, a marathon vote set to begin Wednesday night on more than 800 proposed amendments is an effort to prevent the government from sweeping the mess under the rug.

The legislation hasn't received the detailed study such enormous changes require, they argue.

"We are facing a government that does not respect this institution," said NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair.

"The reason we are elected is to look at the laws carefully and they are refusing to allow us to have a serious look at this bill."

The government has insisted it needs each and every change contained in the bill in order to follow through on its promise to create jobs and keep the economy humming.

"We live in a global economy and global events will affect us here, so we need to have the tools to continue to keep Canada strong," said Finance Minister Jim Flaherty.

The government has refused repeated requests from opposition parties to break up the bill into more manageable sections.

"By refusing to compromise, the Conservatives are setting a dangerous precedent," said Liberal House leader Marc Garneau. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg lab. Progress in potential treatment for deadly Ebola infection

Canadian researchers are reporting a potential advance in the treatment of Ebola virus infection, one of the most deadly pathogens known to humankind.

Researchers from the National Microbiology Laboratory in Winnipeg are reporting that monkeys deliberately infected with Ebola were successfully saved with a cocktail of antibodies against the virus.

Four of four monkeys given the treatment 24 hours after infection survived. And two of four monkeys treated 48 hours after infection also survived.

There currently is no vaccine and no treatment for Ebola, a viral hemorrhagic fever that causes sporadic, tragic outbreaks in countries in central Africa.

This treatment isn't ready for human use yet. And even if the work continues to look promising, hurdles will undoubtedly arise when attempts are made to translate findings in the lab to a usable therapy in the field.

Still, these results are creating optimism that a tool with which to combat Ebola outbreaks may be on the horizon. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Teacher showed his students grim body-parts case video

Caution: Disturbing content. High school swiftly suspends man, but students defend him, saying they asked him to play it

A teacher has been suspended by a Montreal school for showing Grade 10 students the infamous video that shows a killing allegedly committed by Luka Rocco Magnotta.

The teacher showed the students the grotesque scenes on June 4 and was immediately suspended that afternoon — with pay.

The video is so disturbing that even seasoned detectives who watched it were troubled by the contents, Montreal police say.

Staff at Cavelier-De LaSalle High School in Montreal's west end say they quickly informed the students that a team of psychologists was available to deal with any problems from watching the video.

"We condemn with one voice the actions of the teacher," the school board said Wednesday.

"The incident is being taken very seriously."

Students are defending the popular young teacher — who one described as being in his 20s.

Another student said it was the kids who asked him to play the video. She said the teacher was hesitant. A few children in the class also objected.

"He's a very good teacher," declared 17-year-old Maude Aubin-Boivin, adding: "Honestly, his courses are super fun. He's a teacher who knows his job." THE CANADIAN PRESS

In Berlin, a court has ordered Magnotta to be held in pre-extradition custody as his likely return to Canada edges closer.

Magnotta, 29, fled to Europe and was captured at an Internet café in Berlin.

He has said he won't fight extradition.

Zimbabwe. Missing diamond funds heighten political tensions

The Zimbabwe prime minister's party said Wednesday it can't pay the military until revenues from the nation's eastern diamond fields, largely sealed off by troops, reach state coffers.

Prime Minister Morgan Tsvangirai's party said the finance ministry it controls in the coalition government isn't receiving money promised from diamond sales.

The national treasury "is yet to receive a cent" from the biggest mining company that is staffed by former military and security officials, the Movement for Democratic Change said.

The defence ministry has said it needs cash for soldiers who are going hungry and to fund a recruitment drive for an additional 5,000 men. Defence officials loyal to President Robert Mugabe have threatened violence, the MDC said. Defence Minister Emmerson Mnangagwa vowed to send army generals to the finance ministry to force Minister Tendai Biti to meet the military's demands, it said.

Top military commanders have repeatedly refused to salute Tsvangirai. In the latest statement of defiance, a third general last month repeated that the military would not allow politicians who did not fight in the bush war that led to independence in 1980 to take over the reins of power, even if they win elections proposed early next year.

Human rights groups accuse the military and police of being at the forefront of political violence and intimidation surrounding disputed elections in 2008 that led to the formation of the troubled power-sharing coalition.

Wave of car bombs kill, wound Iraqi Shiites

Religious tensions. Sunni insurgents suspected in mass bombing targeting Shiites on annual pilgrimage

A co-ordinated wave of car bombs struck Shiite pilgrims in Baghdad and several other cities Wednesday, killing at least 66 people and wounding more than 200 in one of the deadliest days in Iraq since U.S. troops withdrew from the country.

The bloodshed comes against a backdrop of political divisions that have raised tensions and threatened to provoke a new round of the violence that once pushed Iraq to the brink of civil war. Nobody immediately claimed responsibility for the attacks, but they bore the hallmarks of Sunni insurgents who frequently target Shiites in Iraq.

Wednesday's blasts were the third this week targeting the annual pilgrimage that sees hundreds of thousands of Shiites converge on a golden-domed shrine in Baghdad's northern neighbourhood of Kazimiyah to commemorate the eighth century death of a revered Shiite saint, Imam Moussa al-Kadhim. The commemoration culminates on Saturday.

Puddles of blood and shards of metal clogged a drainage ditch at the site of one of the bombings in the city of Hillah, where hours before pilgrims had been marching. Soldiers and onlookers wandered near the charred remains of the car that had exploded and ripped gaping holes in nearby shops.

Most of the 16 separate explosions that rocked the country targeted Shiite pilgrims in five cities, but two hit offices of political parties linked to Iraq's Kurdish minority in the tense north. Authorities had tightened security ahead of the pilgrimage, including a blockade of the mainly Sunni area of Azamiyah, which is near the twin-domed Shiite shrine.

According to accounts compiled by police and health officials in the targeted areas, the first bomb struck a procession at around 5 a.m. in the town of Taji, north of Baghdad, killing seven people and wounding two others.

That was followed by four more morning blasts that hit other groups of pilgrims across the capital, killing 25 people and wounding more than 70.

South of Baghdad, two car bombs exploded minutes apart at dawn in the centre of the mainly Shiite city of Hillah, killing 21 people and wounding 53, according to two police officers and one health worker.

A parked car bomb also exploded near a group of pilgrims in the Shiite holy city of Karbala, 90 kilometres south of Baghdad, at about 8 a.m., killing two people and wounding 22 others.

In the Shiite town of Balad, 80 kilometres north of Baghdad, two nearly simultaneous car bombs killed seven pilgrims and wounded 34.

Explosions also targeted Iraqi Kurds in the north.

The overall toll made it the deadliest day in Iraq since Jan. 5, when a wave of bombings targeting Shiites killed 78 people in Baghdad and outside the southern city of Nasiriyah.

Political strife

Political divisions in Iraq have deepened, paralyzing the country since the Americans withdrew all combat troops in mid-December.

- Shiite Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki has been accused of trying to monopolize power.
- Tensions spiked after Vice-President Tariq al-Hashemi — the highest-ranking Sunni in Iraq's leadership — was charged with running death squads.
- The political stagnation has set back hopes for stability in Iraq and stalled efforts to rebuild the country after eight years of U.S. occupation.

Amish defrauded, man sent to jail

A federal judge in Ohio has sentenced a man to six and a half years in prison for defrauding fellow Amish in 29 states out of nearly $17 million.

Monroe Beachy, 78, pleaded guilty to mail fraud in a scheme the government says defrauded nearly 2,700 people and entities.

Beachy is a member of an Amish church about 96 kilometres south of Cleveland where he operated an investment business that filed for bankruptcy protection two years ago.

Investigators say Beachy promised to put the investors' money into safer securities. But he used it for higher-risk investments. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow plow fracas

Good Samaritan's ticket scrapped

Justice officials in Alberta have dropped a ticket issued to a Good Samaritan who used his ATV to plow snow off a city sidewalk.

Jon Cooper received the $250 fine in January 2011 while attempting to clear a path regularly used by seniors in St. Albert, north of Edmonton.

When the ATV and it's attached plow got stuck in the heavy snow, Cooper's son tried to tow it out with his truck. RCMP arrived and ticketed Cooper for using the ATV in the city.

There was a scuffle and officers charged the son with obstructing a peace officer. Those criminal charges were also dropped. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Questions. 'Ray' emerges from forest, wanders into Berlin and now keeps all Germany guessing

Mystery boy Ray now uses a laptop and cellphone and goes to school. But who is he? POLICE PHOTO

Who is Ray? That's the question all Germany is asking.

Ray is an English-speaking teenage boy who wandered into Berlin nine months ago saying he had been living for the last five years in the forest with his father.

But "there are many question marks," police spokesperson Thomas Neuendorf said.

The boy told authorities his father called him "Ray" and that he was born June 20, 1994, but claims not to know his last name or where he's from.

He said his mother, Doreen, died in a car accident when he was 12 and after that he and his father, Ryan, took to the forest.

He said they wandered using maps and a compass, staying in tents or caves overnight.

He told authorities that after his father died in August, 2011, he buried him in the forest and then walked five days north before ending up in Berlin, and showed up at city hall. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cuba Catholics in fighting mood

For months, Cuban Cardinal Jaime Ortega has been under fire.

He has been called a lackey and political ally of Raul Castro's communist government, asked to resign over his treatment of protesters and ridiculed in Miami as a snobby elitist.

Now, Cuba's Roman Catholic Church is fighting back.

Church officials on the island have launched a full-throated defence of their leader, and Catholic publications have harshly denounced his critics.

Analysts say the increasingly virulent back-and-forth is extremely unusual on an island where the church has traditionally preferred to exercise influence quietly, behind the scenes. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buddhists versus Muslims. Violence triggered by rape and murder of Buddhist woman, allegedly by three Muslims

Heavy rain brought an uneasy calm in western Myanmar on Wednesday after five days of sectarian strife, though residents were too fearful to sleep and faced food shortages.

The conflict pitting ethnic Rakhine Buddhists against stateless Rohingya Muslims in coastal Rakhine state has caused at least 21 deaths and more than 1,600 homes have been torched in some of the worst sectarian unrest recorded in Myanmar in years.

Soldiers and police patrolled and warned people by loudspeaker to abide the existing state of emergency, which gives the military full authority over administrative and security functions in Rakhine.

Fears of renewed violence halted bus and ferry deliveries of food and other cargo from Yangon to Sittwe, limiting supplies and sending prices skyrocketing.

Rae won't run for Liberal leadership

Ottawa. Party leadership race now wide open as interim chief steps aside

Bob Rae won't seek the permanent leadership of the federal Liberals because it's better for the party, the interim leader said Wednesday, setting the stage for a wide-open race and renewing the tantalizing prospect of a Justin Trudeau candidacy.

Sources say the 63-year-old Rae — who will stay on as interim leader until a replacement is chosen — decided against running primarily because, despite popularity among caucus members, he still doesn't have the broad support of the party's rank and file.

"It hasn't been an easy decision, (but) it's a decision I feel very comfortable with," Rae said after breaking the news to his caucus behind closed doors. "For me, it was a question of deciding how I could do the best thing for the health of the Liberal party."

Rae's controversial tenure as Ontario NDP premier from 1990 to 1995 — marred by a deep recession, broken campaign promises and acrimonious relations with the province's unions — has long been cited as one of the principal reasons he struggled to win Liberal support. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Trafficking ring. Mother of alleged victim recalls daughter's horror

The mother of an alleged victim in an Ottawa human-trafficking case says her daughter is terrified.

The girl was robbed, beaten up, held for hours, forced into an encounter with a john and threatened repeatedly with having her throat slit, she said.

The woman, whose name cannot be published so as not to identify her daughter, said she confronted one of the suspected teen pimps and her mother to retrieve her daughter's belongings "and get her power back."

"She beat my daughter mercilessly in the face and the nose, kept punching her over and over again," she alleged of one of the accused.

Two 15-year-old girls have been charged in connection with the case. A third suspect, aged 17, is still being sought. Police say they lured three girls from the ages of 13 to 17 to a home by posting messages on social-media websites. The three victims were then allegedly forced to go to another location and perform sexual acts on men.

The alleged victim's mother, who said her daughter was held for hours but escaped, is upset that the third suspect has not been found and that police are unable to release her name publicly in order to locate her.

"My daughter was terrified. She blocked the door with chairs and said, 'They're going to come back and slit my throat.' You have no idea of the terror," she said.

The daughter is apparently afraid of retribution after her mother contacted police and confronted the accused teen's mother. The girl's belongings were found in two of the accused girls' homes, her mother said. JESSICA SMITH/METRO IN OTTAWA

Greenhouse gases

Canada not on pace to meet emissions targets: Report

The federal government says it sees no need to change its greenhouse gas strategy despite a new, hard-hitting report — commissioned by Ottawa — that shows Canada falling far short of its climate-change objectives.

The report by the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy added up every provincial and federal measure — existing and proposed — to reduce greenhouse gases.

It found that Canada is on track to achieve only half of its 2020 target to reduce greenhouse gases by 17 per cent below 2005 levels.

"Canada will not achieve its 2020 GHG emissions-reduction target unless significant new, additional measures are taken," the report said.

In order to actually meet the target, Ottawa would have to take the lead, collaborate closely with provinces and introduce significant new measures to curtail emissions, especially in Alberta, the report concluded. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ugandan women go to highest court over maternal deaths

Serious role.
Decision in favour of the women would shame government

Women walk out of court in Kampala, Uganda, earlier this month after losing a case against the government over maternal deaths during childbirth. They have now taken the issue further, to the country's Supreme Court. STEPHEN WANDERA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 100 women die during childbirth each week in Uganda, a heartbreaking statistic that has energized activists to go to the Supreme Court in a bid to force the government to put more resources toward maternal health care to prevent the wave of deaths.

The activists say they want the country's top judges to declare that women's rights are violated when they die in childbirth, the kind of statement a lower court declined to give last week. In rejecting the petition, the constitutional Court said the matter was for the country's political leaders to handle.

The country's top judges have a serious role to play: A declaration favouring the women activists would shame the government into action that drastically reduces mortality among childbearing women in Uganda, activists say.

"All we want is a declaration that when women die during childbirth it is a violation of their rights," said Noor Musisi of the Center for Health, Human Rights and Development, a Kampala-based group that is championing the legal push. The groups presented the bid to the Supreme Court on Tuesday.

Uganda loses 16 women in childbirth daily, a figure some activists boldly emphasize on placards during regular marches in the streets of the Ugandan capital. Most of these deaths happen in villages where bad roads and poverty make it difficult for women to reach health centres. Even when they get there, some say, the available care is poor.

DID THE LOSS OF A FAMILY MEMBER BEFORE JUNE 14, 2010, RESULT IN A CORONER'S INVESTIGATION AND AUTOPSY?

IF SO, IT IS POSSIBLE THAT AN ORGAN WAS RETAINED AFTER AUTOPSY AND KEPT FOR FURTHER TESTING.

When deaths are investigated, pathologists sometimes retain an organ to help determine the cause of death.

In the past, family members may not have been notified that an organ had been retained. Now, families are routinely notified when an organ is retained and their wishes regarding final disposition of the organ are sought wherever possible.

The Ontario Forensic Pathology Service is reaching out to anyone for whom the loss of a family member before June 14, 2010, resulted in a coroner's investigation and autopsy.

Immediate family members and personal representatives (i.e. those responsible for administering an estate) are invited to contact us to find out if an organ was retained in their case.

Affected families and personal representatives may request that the organ be sent to a funeral home for cremation or burial. Expenses will be covered by the Ontario Forensic Pathology Service and the Office of the Chief Coroner.

Organs retained before June 14, 2010, will be respectfully disposed of beginning on June 14, 2013. This is in accordance with regulations made under the Coroners Act.

A toll-free telephone line has been set up. Contact us at 1-855-564-4122 or visit our website at Ontario.ca/OrganRetention.

German MPs booted for wearing clothes linked to neo-Nazis

Controversy. Far-right lawmakers thrown out of state parliament for wearing brand popular among extremists

The president of Saxony's state parliament expelled eight far-right lawmakers from the assembly Wednesday for wearing clothes favoured by German neo-Nazis.

The NPD party lawmakers refused to remove T-shirts and shirts from the Thor Steinar company in an "openly provocative act," Saxony state parliament spokesman Ivo Klatte said.

The brand, with its runic symbols and Nordic themes, is popular among neo-Nazis in Germany, even though the company has distanced itself from far-right extremism in the past.

The lawmakers were banned from parliament's next three sessions after refusing to change or leave, Klatte said. They only left voluntarily after police entered the assembly hall to enforce their expulsion.

Parliament's rules forbid clothes, posters or stickers expressing a political opinion in the assembly hall, Klatte said.

Thor Steinar clothes are "typical for the far-right scene," and assembly president Matthias Roessler said that wearing them amounted to an overt expression of a political opinion, Klatte said.

Lawmakers from centre-left and far-left opposition parties in the past were also sanctioned for wearing political stickers or posters in parliament. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Response

The NPD lawmakers maintained they were not trying to provoke parliament, but that the Thor Steinar shirts were worn as a "protest action" targeted at the rules banning such clothes, said NPD spokesman Thorsten Thomsen.

- "We think that no caucus member was wearing clothes that explicitly express a political opinion," he said, adding Thor Steinar was merely a "fashion brand."

Mouthing off. Rob Lowe gets flak online for 'hellhole Winnipeg' rant

It seems hell hath no fury like a city that's been called a "hellhole" by a second tier Hollywood actor.

Rob Lowe, in Winnipeg to shoot a made-for-TV movie, has stirred up anger after writing a message on Twitter Tuesday night that ended with the hashtag "#Trappedinahellhole."

Lowe was complaining about how he was watching the NBA playoffs on TV when the station interrupted the game for coverage of municipal elections.

However, there were no municipal elections in Manitoba Tuesday — Lowe was likely watching a TV station based across the border in Grand Forks, N.D.

Winnipeg residents quickly fired back on Twitter, calling Lowe a jerk, a schmuck and other names.

"You can leave any time," wrote Ken Johnston.

"Feel free to leave the hell hole. I'm sure another great thespian could take your role," wrote Scott Cawson.

The apparent jab came as a disappointment to Liz Peters, a Lowe fan who managed to get a picture with the star outside his hotel last week. Lowe seemed quite happy and had no complaints, she said.

Winnipeg's dumpster doggie Rayne OK

A puppy named Rayne is cared for by a City of Winnipeg Animal Services staff member after being found in a dumpster last week. The eight-week-old shepherd-collie mix was found wet and cold in a north-end garbage bin. Rayne hasn't been adopted yet due to a five-day holding period the agency has in place, but the cute little pup is getting lots of attention.

'The dog did it'

The dog didn't do it, police say

A western Pennsylvania man who blamed his dog for causing an apartment fire has been jailed on charges that he set the blaze himself.

Cresson Township police have charged 58-year-old John Saparo with setting the fire, though police have yet to specify how.

Police did say they've determined the fire didn't start the way Saparo claimed. He told officers he was cleaning and had several fans running when his dog knocked one over which, somehow, started the fire.

Papal envoy backs bishops over birth control

Religious-liberty fight. 'Delicate' approach needed in context of presidential election, ambassador says

The pope's U.S. ambassador praised American bishops Wednesday for confronting the American government over religious-liberty issues, including resisting the mandate from President Barack Obama's administration that health insurance cover birth control.

Archbishop Carlo Vigano, the papal nuncio based in Washington, noted such advocacy required a "delicate" approach in the context of a presidential election. But Vigano said the concerns were so worrisome that bishops had to act.

"It goes without saying that the Catholic Church in the United States is living in a particularly challenging period of its history," Vigano told an Atlanta meeting of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. "Of course, I am thinking of the whole question of freedom of religion and of conscience."

The national gathering is the bishops' first since dioceses filed a dozen lawsuits against an Obama-administration mandate that most employers provide health insurance covering birth control. The rule generally exempts houses of worship, but faith-affiliated hospitals, charities and schools would have to comply.

Pickton inquiry. Probe finds no evidence of harassment at commission

An investigation into claims of sexual harassment within the offices of the Robert Pickton inquiry found no evidence to corroborate what remain anonymous allegations published in the media, says a report by the lawyer who conducted the probe.

The National Post newspaper published a story in April that relied on anonymous sources who alleged they were sexually harassed while working at the commission.

The article prompted commissioner Wally Oppal to appoint an independent lawyer, Delayne Sartison, to look into the allegations. In the meantime, the commission's executive director, John Boddie, took a paid leave of absence to ensure the investigation's independence.

Sartison interviewed current and former staff members but found no evidence of sexual harassment or gender-based discrimination, according to her report, released Wednesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lake and ponds discovered on moon of Saturn

Lunar oasis? Find near equator of satellite defuses theory that bodies of liquid can only exist near poles

Titan with Saturn's rings in the background.
NASA/THE ASSOCIATE PRESS

In a surprise find, scientists say they have spotted hints of a methane-rich lake and several ponds near the equator of Saturn's biggest moon.

Lakes were previously spied near Titan's polar regions. It was long thought that bodies of liquid could not exist near the tropics because they would evaporate.

"This discovery was completely unexpected because lakes are not stable at tropical latitudes," said planetary scientist Caitlin Griffith of the University of Arizona, who led the discovery team.

By measuring reflected sunlight from Titan's surface and atmosphere, the international Cassini spacecraft detected a dark region near the landing site of Huygens, a companion probe that parachuted to Titan's equator in 2005.

Scientists said further analysis of the dark feature suggests the presence of a 2,400-square-kilometre hydrocarbon lake — twice as big as Lake Champlain, a freshwater lake that borders upstate New York and Vermont. Near the tropical lake were hints of four shallow ponds similar in size and depth to marshes on Earth.

The findings were detailed in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature.

Titan is among the few bodies in the solar system with a dense atmosphere, but scientists have wrestled over the source of the thick blanket of nitrogen and methane. Methane gas in the atmosphere is constantly broken up by sunlight and falls to the surface where it is transported back to the poles, condensing to form lakes.

Scientists do not believe this process is driving the presence of tropical lakes and ponds. Rather, they think there may be an underground source of methane that periodically vents to the surface to form the hydrocarbon bodies of liquid.

Maiden voyage

First commercial space supply ship passes the test

Officials say the world's first commercial supply ship to visit the International Space Station weathered its maiden voyage well.

NASA Administrator Charles Bolden and SpaceX Chief Executive Elon Musk discussed the flight as they viewed the Dragon spacecraft at a Texas rocket factory on Wednesday.

Last month, the SpaceX Dragon delivered 453 kilograms of provisions to the space station and returned with 635 kilograms of old equipment.

The California-based SpaceX is the first private business to send a cargo ship to the space station.

Bolden said the capsule gets "beaten up" during re-entry, but is robust. The capsule appeared to be in good condition while on display at the factory in McGregor, 209 kilometres southwest of Dallas.

SpaceX hopes to launch another capsule in September.

Putin clamps down hard on opposition as protests continue

Russia. Anti-corruption whistleblower and leftist leader summoned for interrogation; Putin frustrated over demos

Protesters carry a banner reading "Russia Go Forward without Putin" as tens of thousands flood Moscow streets Tuesday. ALEXANDER ZEMLIANICHENKO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Russian opposition leaders were questioned by investigators on Wednesday, a day after they helped organize the largest protest against Vladimir Putin since his return to the presidency in May.

Anti-corruption whistleblower Alexei Navalny and leftist leader Sergei Udaltsov were questioned as part of an investigation into an earlier rally on May 6 that ended in fierce clashes between police and protesters.

They were summoned for interrogation and had their apartments raided on the eve of Tuesday's rally in what was seen as part of Kremlin efforts to discourage people from attending the anti-Putin protests.

Twelve people have already been arrested on criminal charges in connection with the May 6 rally.

"All the questions have been 'Did you organize the riots? Did you finance the riots?"' Navalny said Wednesday as he headed into the Investigative Committee for a second day of interrogation.

Putin appears frustrated that the protests that drew tens of thousands of people onto the streets of Moscow ahead of the March presidential election have not died away as many expected.

He has increased pressure on the protest leaders, singling out Navalny, whose interrogation lasted more than six hours. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Press repressed?

Journalist threatened

A newspaper editor on Wednesday accused Russia's top investigator of threatening to kill one of his journalists following a dispute over coverage.

Dmitry Muratov, the editor of Novaya Gazeta, which employed journalist Anna Politkovskaya until her murder in 2006, urged Investigative Committee chief Alexander Bastrykin to provide security guarantees for Sergei Sokolov.

Muratov claimed in an open letter that on June 4, Bastrykin's guards forcibly placed Sokolov into a car and drove him to a forest. Once there, he alleged, their chief got into the car and threatened to kill him.

The Investigative Committee would not comment on the letter, which dominated Russian online media Wednesday.

Muratov claims that Bastrykin was angered by a June 4 article by Sokolov that accused him of failing to punish the perpetrators of a 2010 killing of 12 people by a gang. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syria conducting scorched-earth campaign in rebel areas: Amnesty

Terrorizing towns.
New report says brutal attacks by government forces are part of a 'deliberate policy'

Syrian forces and militias dragged men from their homes, executing them and burning their bodies as their families watched — a campaign to terrorize the residents of towns believed to shelter rebels, Amnesty International charged in a report released Wednesday.

The report by the London-based rights group said Syrian forces were engaging in a scorched-earth policy in some areas, killing some civilians and torturing others, shooting livestock and burning crops and houses in rebel-held areas.

Amnesty said the attacks appeared to increase as the 15-month uprising has transformed into an armed conflict between rebels and Syrian forces.

The group said it based its information on more than 200 interviews with residents in 23 Syrian towns and villages over six weeks, starting in mid-April.

Amnesty said it also documented incidents of rebels kidnapping and killing captured soldiers and pro-government thugs, known as "shabiha," but said the vast majority of abuses were committed by government forces and their allies.

"The frequency and brutality of government reprisals against towns and villages supportive of the opposition has escalated, in an apparent bid to punish the inhabitants ... and to frighten them into submission," the report said.

"The scale of the attacks, and the manner in which they were carried out, indicates that such crimes were perpetrated as part of a deliberate policy," it said.

In one incident, an Amnesty researcher saw Syrian security forces and their loyalist militias opening fire on demonstrators and passersby, including children, to quell a protest in the northern city of Aleppo.

It was one of the few that Amnesty itself witnessed. The testimonies it gathered could not be independently confirmed.

The Syrian government had no comment on the report. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harper urges Russia to stop blocking UN sanctions

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has called on Russia to stop blocking UN attempts to impose sanctions on the "murderous" Syrian regime of Bashar Assad.

But the prospect of that succeeding, or any other attempt to sway Russia, appeared doomed by deteriorating relations between Washington and the Kremlin over accusations Moscow was supplying attack helicopters to its longtime ally in Damascus. Keystone XL pipeline. Oklahoma governor says she's frustrated by delays

Oklahoma's governor is losing patience with delays in building the controversial Keystone XL oil pipeline, which would cross through her state on its way from Alberta to the Texas coast.

Mary Fallin told delegates at the Global Petroleum Show on Wednesday she's encouraged that the backer of the $7.6-billion US project, TransCanada Corp., plans to start building a stretch of pipe from her state south to Texas refineries very soon.

"We've had some great meetings while we've been here with TransCanada to talk about those operations, and they're anticipated to begin construction on that section of pipeline in July in our state."

During her visit to Canada, Fallin also visited a steam-driven oilsands operation near Fort McMurray, Alta., operated by Oklahoma-based Devon Energy.

Oklahoma is home to a huge oil storage hub at Cushing, and several pipelines lead in that direction.

However, a massive supply glut there has depressed the price North American producers get for their oil, so they want to see more pipeline capacity out of Cushing to funnel some of the excess to more lucrative markets.

Fallin also says the U.S. should be buying crude from a "friend" and "ally" like Canada instead of from hostile regimes.

Tech trends. Tablet ownership continues to surge in Canada, iPad tops

Tablet ownership continues to surge in Canada, and online and mobile TV viewing is on the rise, according to a new report on tech trends in Canada.

Based on 2,000 surveys of anglophone Canadians conducted in March and April, CBC/Radio-Canada's Media Technology Monitor found that the rapid adoption of tablets continues, with about 21 per cent of those surveyed reporting they owned one of the pricey devices. That figure is up 3.5 times compared to last spring, when only six per cent of anglophone Canadians had a tablet.

Apple's iPad was far and away the most popular tablet with about 62 per cent of the market in Canada, while Research in Motion's BlackBerry PlayBook had a share of almost 20 per cent, according to the survey results.

More Canadians also said they're using their mobile devices to watch TV. About 21 per cent of tablet owners said they are now watching TV shows on their device, which represents about five per cent of the total anglophone population. Only about two per cent of anglophones were watching TV shows on tablets in the spring of 2011.

Online viewing

The viewing of online video on mobiles devices, computers and TV sets, grew over the past month.

- 71 per cent watched some type of online video.
- 1 in 5 watched full-length TV episodes.
- 19 per cent watched a feature film.

Canada being hit by Dutch Disease: Report

Economic analysis. Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development traces the steep decline of manufacturing

The OECD is weighing in on the controversy surrounding whether Canada is suffering from an economic condition known as Dutch Disease, and it's qualified answer is yes.

The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development warns in a report released Wednesday that the run-up in commodity prices is leading to an uneven economy in Canada.

Resource-rich provinces such as Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland have prospered, while others have fallen behind, in part because a commodity boom has strengthened the Canadian dollar, hurting exchange-sensitive sectors such as manufacturing and tourism.

A similar problem occurred in the Netherlands after its North Sea oil fields created a new source of resource wealth and contributed to the hollowing out of the manufacturing sector there, hence the term Dutch Disease.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mixed reactions

The analysis mirrors that of NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair, who has been accused of pitting regions against each other for political purposes.

- Last month, the Pembina Institute said what it called "oilsands fever" has spread benefits unevenly across the country and could be hiding economic turmoil down the road.
- A second report from the Macdonald-Laurier Institute argued that all provinces benefit from the commodity boom.

China's consumer market growing

Customers look at displays of silk dresses at a shop in Shanghai on Wednesday. Chinese consumers can afford to splash out more on higher-quality products, but also expect better value for money than in the past, according to a study by the American Chamber of Commerce. China's consumer market is forecast to become the second largest in the world after the U.S. by 2015. Both Chinese and foreign companies are struggling to keep up as the market evolves, said the report, released Wednesday. For companies like Kraft Foods Inc. and PepsiCo. Inc., that means tailoring products to suit local tastes while leveraging the company's global brand name. Kraft spent much time researching Shanghai consumers, going into their homes, to understand their preferences in developing a branding strategy for its famous Chips Ahoy and Oreo cookies, said Haiyan Wang, chief marketing officer for Kraft Foods China. HOW I LEARNED TO STOP WORRYING AND LOVE THE GAME

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca/hesays

North Americans have finally accepted the Beautiful Game. When I watched my first World Cup in 1990, people condemned soccer as boring and unmanly and just generally this European thing we didn't understand, like men in beach thongs.

Now, as the Euro plays out, even those who don't love it have come to accept its value. It's like when a passively xenophobic guy in a small town meets his first immigrant. "Hey," he says, "that soccer guy is all right."

Soccer and I got off to rocky start. I remember watching 22 years ago and thinking that each game had the same excitement level as CPAC.

Stop the excitement!

"I thought maybe there was an applause meter that let refs know when the game was getting too interesting."

But then there would be a long pass, the announcer's voice would rise and, at long last, the cry known around the world would ring out across the continents: Offside!

My understanding of the rule then was that whenever anything exciting was about to happen, the whistle would blow. I thought maybe there was an applause meter that let refs know when the game was getting too interesting.

I also had a problem with diving — not that players did it, but that they were so bad at it.

Soccer players are terrible actors. A player will collapse to the pitch like he's stepped on a land mine, even though replays show the opposing player had only made eye contact. That I can accept, but the game loses me when the diver rolls back and forth like he's kneading a patch of dough. No truly injured person in the history of the world has ever rolled back and forth violently. Nobody who's been in a car accident thinks, "Better roll it out."

And of course I hated hooligans. Even hated the name, which makes the most despicable people in the world sound like loveable scamps.

But I've since come around, if only because North America knows how to screw up their sports, too.

If I still find the occasional soccer game boring, I need only think of what it was like to watch this year's NHL playoffs, which in the final two rounds were an amazing display of shot-blocking, icings and offsides that the world had not witnessed the likes of since mid-January.

If I consider diving unsportsmanlike, I can think of how many people shrug off baseball players cheating their way right into the record books.

And if I wish to condemn rioters and thugs (and I do), I can also note how often North American sporting events seem to be celebrated with the ceremonial Burning of the Cars.

So now when the World Cup and the Euro roll around, I latch on to a team or two and drink in the colourful costumes, bicycle kicks, celebration runs and the rising crescendo of the soccer chant.

Frankly, any sport that can get 80,000 fans in one place without any of them singing YMCA is all right by me.

Portugal wins, Russian fans rage

A Portugal fan enjoys the pre-game atmosphere ahead of a Euro 2012 match between Denmark and Portugal at Arena Lviv on Wednesday in Lviv, Ukraine.

Portugal went on to beat Denmark 3-2.

But the tournament has not been without its fair share of controversy.

Russia could be deducted six points in its qualifying group for the next European Championship if its fans turn violent again at Euro 2012.

UEFA fined the Russian soccer association $150,000 US on Wednesday because its fans attacked stadium stewards at a match last week in Poland. UEFA also gave the federation a suspended six-point deduction for a repeat offence.

Within hours of the announcement, UEFA charged Russia with further offences relating to its fans' behaviour inside the National Stadium during the match against Poland on Tuesday in Warsaw. Russian fans were also filmed fighting with stadium staff in Wroclaw after a 4-1 win last Friday.

Baring it all

Croatia's culture ministry has told an employee to stop revealing her bare breasts at European Championship matches.

- Topless Internet photos of Jelena Miksa, a clerk at the culture ministry, and a female family member have been a hit on social networks and local media as they celebrated Croatia's 3-1 victory over Ireland on Sunday in Poznan, Poland.
- The women said they did it in support of the team.

Offside

"We don't want to sound discourteous — we've always been willing to take on any type of subject — but we'll return to that when we're calmer, not on the eve of a key match."

Italy coach Cesare Prandelli, responding to Italy player Antonio Cassano's remark on gay footballers. Cassano said Tuesday that he hopes there are no homosexual players on the national team at the European Championship, then used a derogatory word to describe gays. Hours later, he issued an apology.

For Daniel Powter, bad days are old news

New album. It has been a long road back for a the one-hit wonder artist who has struggled with drug abuse and depression

The smash hit Bad Day should have been a good thing for Daniel Powter: The upbeat tune put Powter on the musical map.

It not only became the biggest hit of his career, but it was also the No. 1 song of 2006.

But lightning didn't strike twice for the Powter. In fact, lightning didn't even come close again.

Powter never returned to the pop charts and Billboard even named Powter the decade's top one-hit wonder.

Powter eventually became sick of performing his claim to fame.

Quote

"When the spotlight hit me, I was like, 'I don't want to be in the spotlight."
Daniel Powter

"When the spotlight hit me, I was like, 'I don't want to be in the spotlight,'" he said in a recent interview. "I hated it. I hated being on TV."

Depressed, he turned to drugs and alcohol, his personal life fell apart and his next album flopped.

"I just didn't want to do it anymore," he explained.

But Powter, now 41, has returned to music. A new album, Turn on the Lights, is set for an August release, and he said he's been clean and sober for two years.

Red carpet show the 'most exciting part' of MMVAs

MuchMusic. The nation's music station prides itself on it unique approach to awards shows

BACKSTAGE PASS
Ian Gormely
scene@metronews.ca

After the show there will be after parties. And after that, there may even be shenanigans in hotel lobbies. But the best way to rub elbows with celebrities at Sunday night's MuchMusic Video Awards is on the pre-show red carpet.

"With the red carpet show, you never know what's going to happen and that's the most exciting part," says Steve Jarman, the show's supervising producer.

The red carpet will overtake John St. between Queen and Richmond for the third time this year, a necessary change after the MMVAs themselves overtook the red carpet's former home on Queen St. Exactly 6,450 feet of material will be laid down to handle the over 150 expected guests who'll walk along the space's namesake posing for photos and answering questions

"The red carpet is a huge celebration," says Jarman. "Its a chance for fans to get up close and personal with their favourite stars."

The nation's music station has always prided itself on its unique approach to awards shows, holding it in an office building and parking lot instead of a stuffy theatre to create a party atmosphere. That attitude extends to the red carpet where flashy arrivals have become the rule rather than the exception. Ice Cream trucks, ambulances, even giant hamster balls have been used to deliver the stars to the party.

Unique transportation is generally discussed with organizers ahead of time. Jarman says organizers do their best to accommodate but sometimes, safety trumps spectacle, like the time one artist wanted to land a hot-air balloon on the street.

Planning started earlier this winter and weeks are spent hammering out a runsheet with guest's scheduled arrival times. But that runsheet often goes out the window within the first five minutes. And that's just fine with Jarman.

"We don't want to have just a regular red carpet show," he says. "Our show's a lot more about the party."

Much Music Video Awards: June 17. 9 p.m. 299 Queen St. W. Free with Wristband.

How it works:

Wrangler's work is never done

Due to the MMVAs' massive scale, organizers turn to staff when it comes time to assign wranglers to arriving stars. "It's all staff. We pull people from every part of this building," says Jarman.

Wranglers meet their artist out on the street and keep an eye with them on the red carpet, then guide them inside the party. They stick with their assigned star for the night, with the express goal of ensuring they're ready and in the right place when it comes time to present or perform.

Scene in brief

Cruise honoured by Friars

Tom Cruise was in Manhattan to collect an award, and, yes, promote a movie. On Tuesday night, the actor received the fourth-ever Friars Club Entertainment Icon Award, placing him in the same company as Douglas Fairbanks, Cary Grant and Frank Sinatra. The evening was a toast, not a roast. Alec Baldwin presided at the Waldorf-Astoria, where speakers included such former co-stars as Cuba Gooding Jr. and Kevin Pollak. Robin Thicke and Corinne Rae Bailey were among the musical performers. Many had stories about working with Cruise and his impact on them. Baldwin joked that any time he finds himself taking on too many tasks at once, he hums the theme from Mission: Impossible.

The many evolutions of the artist Sting

Q & A. Singer-songwriter sat down with Metro to discuss his iPad app, what he's listening to these days and the importance of philanthropy

SZONJA KRESINGER
Metro World News

Sting (born Gordon Matthew Thomas Sumner) has donned many hats and experimented with myriad genres during his 35 years in the spotlight.

From his early days as the lead in the popular and ever-changing new wave band the Police, to a solo career incorporating everything from jazz to new age sounds, to the numerous humanitarian and environmental causes he has lent his celebrity status to, Sting is no stranger to exploring new paths.

Yet his most recent tour, Back to Bass, was something of a stripping down for the prolific artist where the path he took was the most basic one.

Having just come off the Symphonicity tour, performing arrangements of his songs with large orchestras, he wanted to do something simpler, an approach he's continuing during his current summer tour.

How did it feel to put your recent box set together, taking a look back at all these years?

I'm not a particularly nostalgic person, so initially, it was quite challenging for me to really look back when my instinct has always been to move forward. But I did feel it was worth taking some time to reflect, seeing what I had achieved in the past 25 years. I certainly had a good time living those 25 years, and it is a pretty significant milestone in my career. I thought if ever there was a suitable time to do a project like the box set, this was it.

Was there any song you wanted to include but finally dropped?

The most challenging part of the process was choosing the songs and inevitably, there were many that didn't end up on the box set. But asking me to pick my favourites would be like asking me to choose a favourite child! I love them all and each one is unique in their own way. That said, I'm very proud of the end result.

Do you plan a new studio album in the near future?

I don't really have a plan quite yet. I enjoy and appreciate the creative freedom I have, and the ability to do what interests me. I get bored pretty easily and so I always like to do something new and something that is hopefully surprising. I think my audience has come to expect that element of surprise. So I'm really not sure what comes next, but expect the unexpected.

What types of artistic projects interest you the most?

Like I said, I always like to try something new. I can only do what I'm inspired to do. Right now, I'm working on a play for Broadway. We're in the very early stages, but I've been writing a lot of music for that. It's completely new territory for me and it's quite exciting.

Why did you decide to have the Sting iPad app? Would you ever consider making music with the help of such gadgets like the iPad?

To me, it's important to embrace new technology and try to evolve with it. I look at the app as a new way of getting music to people. It's very innovative, but at the same time it reminds me of the days where you'd purchase an album and get to enjoy all of the photos and liner notes, and really get a sense of how the album was made. That's missing in the digital age. In terms of making music with something like the iPad, I wouldn't rule it out. There's no way of anticipating where technology is going next.

New album. Travelling overseas with Patti Smith and her music

The success of Patti Smith's memoir Just Kids, about her friendship with Robert Mapplethorpe, sealed her reputation as a wide-ranging artist and writer at the heartbeat of New York City.

The 2010 bestseller about growing up in New York's art scene won the National Book Award for nonfiction and is her most successful project yet in any format. But whether her new literary fans will translate into more buyers of her music is a question Smith has been asking herself of late.

Banga is Patti Smith's first album of original music in eight years. JOHN CARUCCI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While making her new album Banga, out this week, Smith said she "had more of a sense that I had people I was speaking to in America, because I haven't felt that in a long time."

She knows her audience. It's why the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame member will be far from home this summer supporting the release of Banga.

Three-quarters of Smith's music sales are from outside of the United States. At home, she's a niche artist best remembered for the 1978 hit Because the Night. Overseas, she's a star, with her biggest markets in Germany and France.

Smith said she thinks a European audience responds better to a multi- disciplinary artist. She's got a rock 'n' roll growl with the best of them, but Smith considers herself primarily a writer and also exhibits her photography.

Banga is a disc of wide-ranging intellectual heft, with songs inspired by the late French actress Maria Schneider, singer Amy Winehouse and novelist Mikel Bulgakov. Banga is also a good bet to be the only disc this year with a song about explorer Amerigo Vespucci.

Smith takes natural pride in two of the disc's musicians — her son Jackson, who plays guitar and daughter Jesse, a pianist.

Jackson, who's 30 and married to the musician Meg White, picked up his father's guitar and taught himself to play after Fred Sonic Smith died in 1994. Jesse, 25, is featured on the album-closing version of Neil Young's After the Gold Rush.

"It's for their father," said Smith, who lived in Detroit for many years while married but is now back in New York. "When we all play together, we really have him with us. I'm just so happy that they have so much of him within them. I just want my kids to be healthy and happy." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winehouse connection:

Smith's maternal instincts partly inspired This is the Girl about Winehouse, who died last year. It was originally written as a poem, but as the album was coming to a close, bass player Tony Shanahan offered some music that matched the lyric.

- Smith was drawn to Winehouse as a singer who had "one of the most unique voices I had ever heard," she said. "I was amazed at this girl and equally worried about her."

Paul Williams Still Alive — and kicking

Q & A. Singer — now in his 70s — back in a new documentary chronicling his life

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Paul Williams. GETTY IMAGES

Paul Williams has led quite the life as a prolific songwriter, an actor and a charming talk-show regular. But that doesn't necessarily mean he was excited about filmmaker Stephen Kessler featuring him in the new documentary, Paul Williams Still Alive.

But Williams is nothing if not a good sport. He spoke with Metro about watching his life chronicled onscreen and not blaming the music business for addiction — and went out of his way not to mention Jay Leno.

You seem pretty uncomfortable for much of the film with Stephen following you around.

Somewhere (during a tour of the Philippines chronicled in the film), I decided I really liked him. I think he came into the film maybe without a conscious kind of conception of what he wanted. I think he would've been thrilled to find me living in a trailer behind a junkyard, playing at the Red Lion nightly, doing the Rainbow Connection with a sock puppet, but the fact is he walked into a life that I was really happy with. I'm 22 years sober and happily married, I have a good relationship with my kids. I'd kind of rebuilt my career. There are some things that are not in the film that he kind of carefully ignores because it interferes with his storytelling.

Were you worried about anything the film depicts about your life?

I was really worried about showing it to my kids, especially my daughter. I had editing rights, so I could take anything out that I wanted, but there's the part where I'm filmed watching the Merv Griffin footage, and I'm just joking about marital infidelity and getting laid on the road, and I thought you can't leave that in. But when I saw the first cut of the film, I thought you know what? If you're going to tell the story, you've got to leave it in.

As the president of ASCAP, how do you think the landscape for songwriters has changed?

There was a time when you went to the Papa Bear, which was the record company, and you had this whole machine working to present you to the music-consuming audience that had three networks to watch and had Top 40 radio. The streams that you fought to get your work into were so minimal, but if you got into that you got everybody. You did the Tonight show, you got everybody. You got played on the Top 40 stations, everybody got to hear those songs. Now everything has become so fractionalized. The challenges are to found ways to be heard. I think as far as the creativity, it's spectacular. To me, rap was like urban poetry. As an Academy member, I voted for Eminem and It's Hard Out There for a Pimp, a great rap song written for the movies. Every generation has its own music. I love some of those combinations of melodic and... blah blah blah. Who cares what some 71-year-old f— thinks about today's music?

Quote

"I think that basically there isn't any real difference between a rock star shooting heroin and a bored housewife in Ohio drinking Listerine. They're both self-medicating and probably dealing with their fear and their boredom, their anxiety. "

Paul Williams

We've had the recent passings of Amy Winehouse and Whitney Houston. Do you see the music business as a sort of enabler for substance abuse?

Those are just the ones that get written about. I think that basically there isn't any real difference between a rock star shooting heroin and a bored housewife in Ohio drinking Listerine. They're both self-medicating and probably dealing with their fear and their boredom, their anxiety. They suffer from addiction or alcoholism, and it's a disease. Some studies proved it in the '60s. I think that in some ways, as long as I was moving forward and showing up for the gigs and funny and I had the energy to keep going, there were enablers around me, but I can't lay any of that off on anybody. I have to really own all of that myself.

You were a guest on the Tonight show 50 times. If you were to get back into the talk show circuit, would you prefer talking to Jay Leno or Conan O'Brien?

Well you know, it's funny because I just spent the last two days in Arizona playing golf with Alan Kalter. Alan's one of my best friends, and he's the announcer on the David Letterman show. You know, I like (Jimmy) Fallon, I did Fallon's show this last year and I really like them. I love Conan. I'm learning how to walk like Conan, that's the main thing. I find that if I throw my elbows heavily to the left and to the right, I can face the day with a little sparkle. And I'm a Letterman addict. My wife and I watch Letterman all the time. You know, that's pretty much it. I haven't been watching the Tonight show a lot.

Cadence Weapon reveals more on buzzy third LP

By the time he was out of his teens, Rollie Pemberton — a.k.a. Cadence Weapon — had a much-hyped debut album, a Polaris Prize short-listing and a captive crowd eager to see what he was going to do next.

At 26 years old now, he's glad that period of magnified attention and rigid expectations is in the past.

"I'm glad that I had the experience I had when I was younger ... because I got that whole thing out of the way — I made all the mistakes already that I could possibly make," the Edmonton-reared rapper said.

"Now I can just work on refining the music. I don't have to worry about ... the critical thing, or whether people will buy it.

"I feel like I'm unfazable at this point. Like I can't be bothered."

It's that attitude that has enabled the creative fearlessness that's powered Pemberton's dogged experimentation since dropping his 2005 debut, Breaking Kayfabe — but three albums into his career, it seems that aural alchemy has finally led Pemberton to a formula he likes.

Yawn. Next.

"I get kind of bored of things. I've got that kind of attention span."

Cadence Weapon, on experimenting with musical choices on his latest album

On his debut, Pemberton layered his laconic rhymes over grimy, booming synths, while 2008's Afterparty Babies probed the edges of house and electro. Though both records showcased his fierce intelligence and endearing sense of playfulness, Pemberton's latest — the recently released Hope in Dirt City — marks the first time the rapper doesn't sound as though he's obscuring his intentions in irony or musical trial-and-error.

"I'm more clear about who I am and presenting myself in a straightforward way," he said. "In the past, I feel like I've done a lot of playing more characters and experimenting with the sound, and I think it's been very hard for the listener to understand if I'm being honest or if I'm being sarcastic or ironic or whatever."

The Vegas showgirl lifestyle loses its lustre for a classically trained ballerina (Sutton Foster), who impulsively marries an admirer (Alan Ruck) and moves to his sleepy seaside community of Paradise, Calif., where his mother (Kelly Bishop) runs a dance studio — and lives with him and his new bride. Bunheads is also a great choice for those in Gilmore Girls withdrawal — it comes from GG creator Amy Sherman-Palladino and features her trademark machine-gun quips and pop-culture references.

The Ewing clan is just as contemptuous as you remember from the hit prime-time soap of the '80s — and now the next generation is involved in the family's favourite pastime of screwing each other over. Returning principals include Larry Hagman as J.R. Ewing, Linda Gray as Sue Ellen Ewing and Patrick Duffy as Bobby Ewing; rekindling the family rivalry is J.R. and Sue Ellen's son John Ross (Josh Henderson) and Bobby's adopted son, Christopher (Jesse Metcalfe), who take on the roles of their fathers. The oil fields of Texas remain a focal point, but because this is 2012, expect a few lessons on alternative energy in between all the fussin' and feudin'. Airs Wednesdays on Bravo.

Jeff Daniels stars as the news team's anchor (literally and metaphorically) who tries to deliver "real" stories while his producers and network (Emily Mortimer, Olivia Munn, Sam Waterston, Jane Fonda) fret over ratings. Killer comedies and a little combat

The summer months are the best time for top-notch funny men and women to take over the box office. It's also a good time for tough dudes to take the screen.

HEIDI PATALANO
Metro News

June 15:
That's My Boy

We're hoping that the presence of Saturday Night Live's Andy Samberg will make this movie not stink, especially considering Adam Sandler's last few films (Jack and Jill, we're looking at you) have been truly awful. In this film, Sandler plays a man-child who fathered and raised a child (Samberg) when he was only a teenager. When they reconnect several years later, each finds themselves coming undone.

June 22:
Seeking a Friend for the End of the World

Consider this one the flipside of Melancholia, since it also deals with a heavenly body that is destined to come crashing into the earth. But here, with Steve Carrell and Keira Knightly co-starring, it's a comedy!

June 29:
Madea's Witness Protection

Oh Madea, Madea, Madea. What are you up to now? Rather than getting into trouble herself, she's hosting a family who is a part of the witness-protection program.

July 13:
Ted

Family Guy's Seth MacFarlane is the brains behind this story of a man (Mark Wahlberg) whose random wish makes a teddy bear he had as a child come to life — albeit as a foul-mouthed scumbag voiced by MacFarlane himself.

Aug. 10:
The Campaign

Put Will Ferrell and Zach Galifianakis in a room together and God knows what will come of it. These two masters of playing awkward schlubs were destined to have their major moment on screen together, and in this film they play opposing senate candidates Cam Brady and Marty Huggins, respectively.

July 27:
The Watch

Previously called Neighborhood Watch, this comedy stars Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn, Jonah Hill and Richard Ayoade as a group of suburban renegades who decide to take the law into their own hands but end up finding out that they're up against extraterrestrials.

Aug. 31:
Lawless

Rocker Nick Cave penned this Prohibition-era film about brothers who get into the bootlegging business in Franklin County, Virginia. Given that the film is loaded with top-flight talent like Tom Hardy, Jessica Chastain, Gary Oldman and Shia LaBoeuf, we're putting our money on this one being the sleeper hit of the summer.

Aug. 17:
The Expendables II

Chuck Norris! Chuck Norris is in this movie. That is all you need to know. Liam Hemsworth also joins the rest of the crew, which is on a revenge mission once one of their own gets killed in the line of duty. But, come on, it's Chuck Norris!

Drunk and on drugs

It's just plain monkey business for Tom Cruise

When Tom Cruise signed on to play fictional hard-rock bad-boy Stacee Jaxx in the musical Rock of Ages, one thing was clear: His role would have to get a lot bigger.

"Why would I have him there if I'm not going to use him?" director Adam Shankman offers. "Using him less would've felt like a stunt, and he would've been underused."

Enter Justin Theroux, one of the film's three credited screenwriters, who previously wrote Tropic Thunder, featuring one of Cruise's more attention-grabbing comedic performances as Hollywood mogul Les Grossman. "The Stacee Jaxx character is very different from the Stacee Jaxx that was onstage," Theroux says, explaining that a lot of the change came from casting Cruise for the role. "It was more sort of a strung-out, druggie, drink-y character. And we basically made him weirder and more fun, we added a monkey who was his best friend, we did all that."

"This is the second time I've gotten to work with Tom, and I love working with him," Theroux says. Theroux admits that comedy in general is still a surprise coming from Cruise. "He doesn't need to do it. He's got such an amazing career as an action star and as a dramatic actor and all of that," he says. "Comedy's not something he really needs to do. But he does, and he's really effective at it because he approaches it like, 'I'm just going to play it straight.'"

With two movies under his belt now writing for the detail-oriented Cruise, Theroux admits he's developed quite a report with the actor.

Smoke and mirrors helps Rock of Ages hit high note

Directing again. Adam Shankman deals with fiscal challenges of taking a Broadway musical to the big screen

NED EHRBAR
scene@metronews.ca

Being beyond-prolific as a producer hasn't left much time for Adam Shankman to devote to his directing career, but the man behind "Hairspray" is back behind the camera for Rock of Ages, a tribute to L.A.'s late-'80s rock scene. Not that bringing the property from Broadway to the screen was necessarily a simple prospect.

How have you been dealing with people finally seeing the finished film?

I've been really nervous about people getting it, and people seem to. The big question mark, of course, was Tom Cruise, and they're in love with him. Without sounding horrifyingly clichéd, in my head it's like I'm saying, "Mission accomplished!"

How was the actual production process for you?

To be completely honest, I had no schedule and I had very little money to make this giant thing. There's a lot of illusion going on in the movie. Russell (Brand) and Alec (Baldwin) were only shooting for two and a half weeks. Catherine Zeta-Jones was only there for four days. So it's all slight of hand and smoke and mirrors as to who's where and when. You know, two weeks after we've shot a scene, we'll shoot the other side of the room because so-and-so wasn't there. I had the same issue on Hairspray to a certain extent with the adults, but this one was a real math trick.

Does that have anything to do with why you're not doing another musical next?

My next movie is a much quieter, acting movie, so it should be a really beautiful respite for me from all the noise of making this movie. It's called This is Where I Leave You, from a book by the same title. It's about a dysfunctional family having to deal with each other in their house after their father dies. It's very funny, but it's also very emotional. That movie will have its own balancing act.

I take it you weren't really into the hard rock scene of the 1980s.

There was no way to escape it. It was just part of culture at that time. In the media, you were always just hearing about these arena guys throwing a f–ing couch out of a hotel window — and no consequences. Hotel rooms destroyed, rape and pillage, you know? It was all in good fun. It was the last time I remember the world feeling like there just weren't any consequences to your actions. I mean, other than in the gay community, it was nothing but casual sex with no AIDS. There was drug use up the wazoo with no rehab.

Without giving too much away, two male characters very surprisingly end up together in this film. Was that in the musical?

Yes, but this is the weird thing about that: It's in the musical, but when I was discussing it with the creators, they said, "No, no, no, they're not gay. They're just bros." And I said, "I know you created this, but you can't have two guys sing this song to each other and think that they're not gay." In the play they do ballet lifts. I was like, "How is that not gay?" They're like, "No, it's just the ultimate bro-mance." Honestly, I can't tell that story halfway. I have to go the full distance. It was a very odd moment for me because I couldn't understand how they didn't seem to have the same insight into what they had done. It was weird to me. I started laughing that I had another big man-on-man musical number, when I had it in Hairspray, too. I was like, "What am I doing? How does this keep popping up? And why do all my movies have a lot of hair?" They're big-wig shows.

Mexican soap opera star gets his shot in Hollywood

The newcomer.
Television actor Diego Boneta wasn't the only one to embrace a first time experience in the film Rock of Ages

scene@metronews.ca

Diego Boneta as Drew Boley in New Line Cinema's musical Rock of Ages.
DAVID JAMES

Though well-known in his native Mexico as a soap star and a singer, Diego Boneta is still a relative unknown in Hollywood. But now that director Adam Shankman has tapped him for the romantic lead in Rock of Ages, that's likely to change. Here's some of the lessons Boneta learned making the film.

What is the best way to deal with being a newcomer is playing a newcomer?
"Being able to be part of really big tours before doing this movie, doing two albums — it definitely helped. But it was my first time doing a movie," Boneta tells Metro. "I mean, I couldn't have asked for a better debut. I'm very humbled to be in this project, and it was a great learning experience."

Did it help not being the only first-timer in the film?
"The cool thing about this movie is that we all shared something in common, which was our first time doing something," he says. "It was my first movie, it was Tom (Cruise)'s first time singing, Alec (Baldwin)'s first time singing. We all had a first time in common. Tom wanted me to do just as good as him, Catherine (Zeta-Jones) wanted Julianne (Hough) to do just as good as her."

If you have to learn to play guitar, do it with Tom Cruise?
"Tom and I spent a lot of time together because we were both learning how to play guitar, and we were learning from the same guitar teacher," Boneta says. "We had our jam sessions, and in those jam sessions, Tom would always be very surprised and interested by how you make very similar choices when you're acting and when you're recording a song. When you're recording you're like, 'OK there's different ways to end this chorus or this verse. You can go vibrato, you can go up, you can go down.' You ask yourself very similar questions when you're in the studio."

Do you have a go-to karaoke song to blow the director away?
"I've been to karaoke bars, and yeah, my friends and I have a blast," Boneta admits. "Do I have a go-to song? Superstition, by Stevie Wonder, which is very unexpected from me. But I can rock it out. Darren Criss from Glee and I once sang it at Rock of Ages director Adam Shankman's birthday, and it was fun."

What were your memories of the year 1987?

Malin Akerman:

"Back then, I don't know about you but I was wearing the horrible fluorescent T-shirts, acid-wash jeans.

"It was really, really ugly. I like the '80s, though. I think it's pretty sexy with, like, girls in high jeans and the rock T-shirts or leather — anything leather is always great."

Justin Theroux:

"Oh, man. Endless frustration with girls.

"I remember hairspray and lots of Dippity-do. My first record was Dirty Deeds Done Dirt Cheap by AC/DC... To me, the '80s were just kind of fun memories because nothing's really gone wrong yet in your life, so all the music is very nostalgic for me, too."

Adam Shankman:

"In 1987, I was actually in New York.

"I had just dropped out of school, I was a waiter working at El Rio Grande on Third Avenue, I was starting to do musical theater... I was going to a lot of clubs. I was a suspenders and skinny tie guy. It was horrifying. I freely admit to the ugliness of it."

Colin Farrell fully embraces demands of starring role in Total Recall remake

Summer blockbuster. Rising star and cast had a blast shooting sequel to 1990 sci-fi thriller in Toronto

TREVOR PARKER
scenel@metronews.ca

Colin Farrell stars in Columbia Pictures remake of Total Recall which opens in theatres August 3. COLUMBIA PICTURES

As eager as he may be for audiences to enjoy his work in the upcoming big-budget Total Recall remake, Colin Farrell wants to state upfront that there's one area in which his version wouldn't dare to compete with the 1990 Schwarzenegger original: "I noticed a lack of one-line jokes," he laughs. "No one does one-liners like Arnie!"

The Recall update is set to be a more sober, serious take on the tale of an oblivious man in the near future who tampers with his memories and ends up uncovering a hidden past and personality.

Farrell says he was at first reluctant to leap into a production that encompassed such a humongous scope, one that overran Toronto streets as well as occupying several cavernous soundstages at the city's new Pinewood studio facility while shooting last year.

"It was terrifying," he admits. "I've been quite content creatively, over the last six or seven years, doing films that were smaller in budgetary scale. It scares the s—t out of me, the idea of being in a really, really big film, it really does.

"But I'm open to it. Initially, I responded to the script and I responded to the idea of a man named Quaid who just really didn't know who he was. It brings up the questions: What makes a person what they are? What makes us all? Can you reclaim, can you change? So meeting Len (Wiseman, director) and seeing his concept artwork and the world he was going to create … I came away from meeting him saying, 'I'd really love to do this, I hope I can!'"

Actress Jessica Biel appears in the film as capable and sexy freedom fighter Melina. Of her role, Biel says, "Melina's grown up very much this underground soldier, and this very strong, empowered person."

Farrell and Biel are chatting with members of the media after a lengthy and particularly punishing day of staging Total Recall's extensive zero-gravity simulations. The action saw the pair trussed up by wires and hung upside down for hours at a time while blasting away with futuristic firearms.

"It's actually so physically painful that there's nothing to do but laugh," Biel says. "You just get completely giddy and it gets to a point where you feel like your eyeballs are about to pop out. We've done our best to laugh through it."

Biel goes on to say that she had much more fun working on her fight scene with co-star Kate Beckinsale, who plays the villainous Lori. She found the scene interesting "because (Kate and I) never fight with women. You're always fighting a monster or thug or something. You never fight a beautiful, sinewy long haired woman. I think it'll look really cool and aggressive. The only issue that we had during the fight was that Kate's hair kept getting stuck in my jacket!"

The remastering of a science-fiction classic

A new vision.
Director Len Wiseman combines stunning visuals with a compelling mystery

scenel@metronews.ca

With remakes of beloved titles hitting multiplexes on a seemingly weekly basis, it's a tricky balancing act for those filmmakers to attract new fans as well as satisfying devotees of the source material.

It's a battle with which the director of the new Total Recall, Len Wiseman, is well aware: "It was a challenge. The Recall script came to me, out of the blue, and I was just taken by the direction that it went in. Of course, there's going to be a side that says, 'Why even do it if it's going to be that much different?' The other group says, 'If there's nothing new, nothing original, why bother?' With all of that out there, I just very selfishly make the movie for myself, and hopefully other people like it."

Wiseman's Recall is certainly adopting a fresh perspective. Gone is the Mars setting of the first film, replaced by a divided earth and a massive tunnel between two nations, bored directly through the centre of the globe.

Production designer Patrick Tatopoulos describes the two sides, with the United Federation of Britain, home of the ruling class, being "bright and clean, with beautiful misty skies. Everything is pristine.

In New Asia, the hardscrabble home of lead character Quaid (played by Colin Farrell), Tatopoulos says, "It feels like old and new technology together. It'll be really grungy. We shot with 350 (extras), so it really feels like a living city. The costumes are going to be outrageous."

As elaborate as the environment and visuals are, Wiseman hopes the core story of hunting for one's identity will be his Recall's most compelling aspect. "There's a ton of action," he says, "but action is completely dead if there's no driving emotion or mystery behind it. What I love about this project the most, I love a mystery anyways, but when the mystery is about the character himself. I'm always drawn to that, like The Fugitive, or Bourne or Blade Runner. Going through the action, there are puzzle pieces within; as Quaid is trying to find out the ultimate mystery, which is, 'Who am I?' That's a big part of it, because otherwise it's just a bunch of explosions and expensive effects."

Wiseman also stood fast against pressure to have Recall released in 3-D. "I'm not against 3-D. It just didn't work with what kind of film I was trying to make."

A family affair

Total Recall marks the third occasion that Len Wiseman has directed his wife, actress Kate Beckinsale. "Kate's been in action movies before, but never as the villain," Wiseman says. "I love the idea." For this Recall, Beckinsale appears as the duplicitous Lori, the role played by Sharon Stone in the 1990 original.

Skies the limit for Jessup as he bags bigger role

Turning 18. Canadian actor's Falling Skies character — Ben Mason — is not only growing up, he's finally getting a gun and a taste of the action

June is a big month for Canadian actor Connor Jessup, to put it lightly. First, he's finishing high school, and later this month he turns 18. On top of all that, Jessup gets to celebrate the second season premiere of the science-fiction series Falling Skies, in which his character, Ben Mason, plays a much bigger — and more gunplay-filled — role than in the first season.

It must be stressful trying to juggle promoting a TV show and finishing high school.

Quoted

"I like to describe it as puberty on steroids — he doesn't know what's happening to him."

Connor Jessup, Falling Skies, explaining the changes his character is going through

Yeah. It's less stressful than trying to juggle shooting the show and finishing high school, which was basically impossible to do. So now I'm suffering for the time I spent shooting, trying to catch up with everything. I graduate the day before my 18th birthday, so it's very exciting. Which is also three days after the show airs, so it's a very packed week. June's exciting.

Your character gets a lot more to do on the show this year.

Last season, Ben was the guy who stayed back and didn't go out on any fights. He was more passive, more bookish. He was less involved in the actual action of the show. Between seasons one and two, there's a time gap of three months, and in that time he's become a fighter. He's become much more aggressive. He's become very angry because he thinks his dad is gone and probably dead, he's lost a lot of people in these various battles. He's become much colder and more distant. When the season takes off, he's fighting. He's very angry at the aliens, but a lot of that anger is a manifestation of his own fear and confusion. I like to describe it as puberty on steroids — he doesn't know what's happening to him, there's a lot happening to his body, to his emotions, and he's trying to deal with them through angst, violence and aggressiveness. But also this season Ben plays a much more central role in the mystery of the show.

Toronto-born Connor Jessup is happy that his Falling Skies character is getting more exciting things to do next season. BENNY HADDAD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

What was your reaction when you heard how much more you'd have to do?

It happened in stages. We found out that the show was getting picked up for a second season in July, almost a few weeks after it aired, but I didn't hear anything after that about what the season was about or what was happening, until September, which was only three or four weeks before we started shooting. So it's mid-September and I get a phone call from one of our executive producers and directors, Greg Beeman. I love him a lot, but he has a very succinct way of talking. He gets right to the point. He just said, "You're going to be an action hero. Buff up" and hung up, pretty much. He left me with that. I didn't know what it meant, I didn't know the context. All I knew was that I was going to be involved in the action stuff, and I had three and a half weeks to go to the gym.

Aside from a lot of time in the gym, you had to do some weapons training as well.

Last year, I was always very envious of the other cast members with their AK-47s and their pistols and grenade launchers and all those things. I was always kind of hoping that I could use one. I always thought that it was a distant possibility, but sure enough my character, beyond just using one, always has one now. So we had to go through weapons training before we started shooting, which is basically just a day of learning how to handle weapons, be safe with them because we fire a lot of blanks in the show. You get to pick your weapon in the show, so the guns end up reflecting the characters.

Walking Dead creator attributes his success to staying immature

A big game of chase. Zombie series' universal appeal comes from its simplicity and ability to keep viewers guessing what's next

The executive producer of AMC's wildly popular zombie series The Walking Dead has spent his life with one foot in the fantasy realm and the other in the real world.

The show, now renewed for a third season, premiered in 2010, and tells the story of a small group of survivors living in the aftermath of a zombie apocalypse.

The story takes place first in the Atlanta metropolitan area and then the surrounding countryside as the survivors search for a safe haven away from the shuffling hordes of predatory zombies or "walkers."

The show stars Andrew Lincoln as sheriff's deputy Rick Grimes, who wakes up from a coma to find the world dominated by zombies. He sets out to find his family and survivors along the way.

Quoted

"The Walking Dead is a success all around the world because it is the most basic, childish game you can play."

Glen Mazzara, Walking Dead showrunner explains the reason why his show works

"I have three passions I have had my entire life that are coming together in this unique project: comic books, TV and horror films," said Glen Mazzara, the showrunner and executive producer in a speech at the Banff World Media Festival on Tuesday.

But Mazzara's passions have never met with the approval from family, friends or teachers throughout his life

"My personal experience is anything I've been interested in as an adult or interested in as a child, an adult comes in and shuts it down and says it's not worthy. It's been a puzzle I've been dealing with my whole life."

Mazzara admits he is surprised by the success of the show, which is based on the long-running comic book of the same name. It is shown in 122 countries to huge ratings and has created a cottage industry with video games, action figures, board games and even playing cards.

"I feel that The Walking Dead is a success all around the world because it is the most basic, childish game you can play," he explained.

"It's the game of 'chase,' the game of 'I'm going to get you,' which is really just an advancement of 'peekaboo.'"

Mazzara is revealing very little information about future seasons of The Walking Dead other than plans to keep the viewer engaged.

"If I like this theory about keeping things in motion, keeping the audience on the edge of its seat — we'll see how long people want to play," Mazzara said.

"I'm like the dungeon-master, I'm the game master and the guy who says, 'Look out! I'm going to get you.'"

Revenge's James Tupper addresses the rumours

Q & A. Canadian-born nighttime soap star is as in the dark about his character's life-or-death status as you are America's guilty pleasure nighttime soap, Revenge, wrapped its first season last month. Fans of the show have been hit with twists and turns since its September premiere, so we enlisted Canadian-born star James Tupper, who plays the (supposedly) murdered David Clarke on the series, for some clarity as to what's really going on in this Hamptons murder mystery.

How much do you know about what's going to happen in future episodes?
I'm following it like everybody else. We get it probably six weeks before you guys and we just read it and then make it. But I have a general idea where it's going. At the front of every script there's a big confidentiality agreement that we all sign. So I'm not gonna tell you, but I will tell you that it's alarming. He's not locked into having all the same characters.

Is your character really dead?
My God, I have to tell you: I was pushing a stroller with my three-year-old in it, and a woman yelled at me from across the street, like, "You're not dead, are you?" It's the question I get asked the most often and I get asked everywhere. It's fine, I love it. I love how invested people are in it — it's awesome. You know, as far as I know, I think I'm dead so far.

The rumour is that star Emily VanCamp is dating her co-star, Josh Bowman, who plays Daniel.
I heard that rumour. I can't confirm or deny it. I really don't know, actually. I mean, they get along great on set. They're discreet.

How do you feel about the show being people's guilty pleasure?
When I first started getting interviewed about the show, they were like, "I'm calling it my guilty pleasure." I realized that it's so fun to be that dramatic, and allow yourself to go there that people feel guilty. (Laughs.) I think Revenge is a lot of fun wrapped up in this sinister, pretty serious world where lots of things are at stake.

What do you think is it about Emily that viewers can't get enough of?
Every guy relates to Daniel not quite having the whole story — like, "What? You're who?" Emily has mastered the Mona Lisa smile. That's the great female mystery: "Do you love me, or do you want to kill me? I can't tell." (Laughs.)

Arquette making divorce official

David Arquette, after nearly two years of separation, has finally filed for divorce from Courteney Cox, according to TMZ.

The papers, however, list the official date of separation as December 31, 2011.

Arquette apparently signed the papers in March but held off on submitting them until Tuesday, which would have been the couple's 13th anniversary. Arquette cited irreconcilable differences in the filing, and though he's asking for joint legal and physical custody of their eight-year-old daughter, Coco, he has not asked for spousal or child support.

Arquette also plans to represent himself in the proceeding.

Richards in splitsville

The apparent romantic rekindling between Richie Sambora and Denise Richards is now off, it turns out, according to Celebuzz.

"They're done," a source says. "They've always stayed friends through everything they've gone through. Sambora and Richards first dated in 2006 after splitting from their respective exes, Heather Locklear and Charlie Sheen.

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth

This Lindsay Lohan car crash is turning out to be especially hard to look away from.

Not only did the actress lie about who was driving, but now police have confiscated a plastic bottle full of alcohol from the rented Porsche's trunk, reports TMZ. Luckily, police have decided not to cite her with an open container violation, and she reportedly was not under the influence at the time of the crash. Lohan's employers, however, aren't willing to look the other way. The producers of her new Elizabeth Taylor biopic for Lifetime, Liz & Dick, decided to stop taking chances and hired her a driver.

"Lifetime will lose a ton of money if Lindsay doesn't finish filming Liz and Dick, plus they don't want anything to happen to her on their watch," a source tells PerezHilton.com. "So it was decided it would be cheaper to get her a driver. This is a make-or-break moment for Lindsay."

Nice start, guys. But we recommend adding a special ops team, a creative pharmacist, a lazy river and the fluffiest basket of kittens L.A. has to offer if you truly want to contain this girl.

Leonardo DiCaprio

DiCaprio coupling up with Heatherton

Leonardo DiCaprio appears to be serious about his latest girlfriend, Victoria's Secret model Erin Heatherton, whom he's been dating long-distance since December, according to Us Weekly.

Though he followed up filming The Great Gatsby in Australia by heading straight to New Orleans for Quentin Tarantino's Django Unchained, DiCaprio has been making more time for Heatherton lately, hitting the town in New York.

They were spotted fawning over one another at the restaurant Candela earlier this week.

And just last week, the pair hit up New York hotspot the Darby.

"They showed up hand-in-hand," a source says. "They were acting like a couple all night."

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News in London

"I think sex sells for women also," says model Matthew Terry. Of course he would say that, being one of the current Calvin Klein Bold Underwear Adonises. You'll no doubt have borne witness to his seductive form in bright, 'bold' trunks stretched taut, abdominals gleaming, hair slicked back — the body perfect emissary of the global super brand.

The body and look that we so admire with either lust or envy is the result of an Olympian-esque training regime:

A healthy start

"I get up and exfoliate my back and neck and I wash with Panoxyl face wash — I use this twice daily because I have slightly oily skin."

He is human after all. Terry adds, "For breakfast I eat an English muffin with peanut butter (high in calories but filled with the same monounsaturated fats as olive oil) followed by an apple or banana and a cup of decaffeinated green tea."

Warm weather workout

"I try to hit all the muscle groups and recently I've been randomizing my workouts." In layman's terms that means short bursts of exercise per repetition, repeated ten times.

Here's the drill: Bicep curls with 35 pound dumbbells; leg presses with a weight of 280 or 290 pounds to feel the burn; 20 leg raises to 90 degrees and down.

The Pennsylvanian-born model says, "I drink plenty of water to avoid muscle cramps and I do the exercises for a maximum of two hours and a minimum of one hour."

Bear in mind that Terry goes to the gym four times a week and might just "pump out 50 push ups on a day." Don't we all?

Collaborators incorporate Canadian themes into new collection

A Canadian knitwear label is taking inspiration from some of the country's most notable cities and famed homegrown symbols as part of a new collaborative line with Roots.

Line Knitwear is partnering with the Canadian lifestyles retailer on the capsule collection.

The new fall-winter line is said to channel inspiration from classic techniques found in Fair Isle hand knitting traditions and also draws from four Canadian cities: Vancouver, Banff, Alta., Toronto and Montreal.

The rustic knits encompass both pullovers and cardigans and feature maple leaves, beavers and geometric tree-inspired motifs with punctuations of vibrant colours.

Helmed by Toronto-based design duo John Muscat and Jennifer Wells, Line is a contemporary womenswear brand which specializes in custom yard blends.

The Line Knitwear and Roots capsule collection is slated to hit stores in August.

Ready to meet new meat? Say hello to cutting edge of carnivore world

The economy has prompted cost-conscious restaurant chefs to spearhead creative — and often less costly — new cuts of beef.

And when they do that, it usually doesn't take long for those cuts to move off the menu and into butcher and grocery shops.

To help get you grill with one of the newly popular cuts of beef, here is a recipe for a meat on the cutting edge.

1. Heat a grill to high.

2. In a blender, combine the cilantro, olive oil, water, cashews and Parmesan. Blend until smooth, or as smooth as you prefer. Season with salt and pepper, then blend again. Set aside.

3. Season the steaks with salt and pepper. Soak a crumpled paper towel with oil. Clasping the paper towel with tongs, oil the grates of the grill. Add the steaks and cook over high heat for 5 to 8 minutes per side for medium-rare.

4. Remove the steaks from the grill and allow to rest for 8 to 10 minutes. Thinly slice the steaks across the grain and top with the pesto.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

Start to finish: 45 minutes

- 1 bunch fresh cilantro, stems and leaves
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 2 tbsp water
- 1/4 cup toasted cashews (pieces are fine)
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 2 lbs teres major steaks
- Vegetable or canola oil

Book of the week

Rethink how you cook your meat

In Charred & Scruffed, chef Adam Perry Lang produces layers of flavour by using new techniques that range from roughing up meat and vegetables ("scruffing") to cooking directly on hot coals ("clinching") to constantly turning and moving the meat while cooking ("hot potato"). Meanwhile, his board dressings and finishing salts build upon delicious meat juices.

The techniques result in recipes such as Leg of Lamb, Clinched-and-Planked Shrimp,, Scruffed Carbonara Potatoes, Crispy Moonshine Onion Rings and more.

Time to pass the pen

PAUL GOLINI JR.
Chair of the Building Industry and Land Development Association (BILD) and can be found at twitter.com/bildgta), (facebook.com/bildgta), and bildblogs.ca.

I have some news to share. Starting next week, this column will be penned by BILD's new president and CEO Bryan Tuckey.

Bryan leapt into his role at BILD on May 22 — and I mean it; he really jumped in and started to get to know the board of directors, the members and the issues that are important to the association right away.

He told me that his personal goal was to meet or talk to 90 new people in his first 90 days. It's been less than a month and he's more than halfway there!

So now that he's had some time to settle in, and he's well on his way to reaching his first goal, the BILD board thought it was a good idea for him to reach out to new homebuyers and homeowners by writing about what's new in our world and how it affects you on a weekly basis.

I know he'll do a great job because Bryan comes to BILD with more than 20 years of senior management experience in the home-building, land-development and renovation industry. He is a planner by trade and was most recently York Region's commissioner of planning, overseeing one of the fastest growing municipalities in Ontario.

Before that, he was the acting assistant deputy minister at the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing and a director of Community Planning at the City of Toronto and the former City of North York.

Needless to say, he's seen a lot over the years and I'm sure he'll have no shortage of column ideas in the weeks to come. Just before I pass the pen to Bryan, I want to thank you for reading and responding to my weekly columns over the last eight months.

I have enjoyed your emails and your tweets and I want you to know that I appreciate all of the conversations that spun out of what you read. Most of all, I want to thank you for helping me spread the word about BILD and the industry that is building the GTA.

Moving on

"I have enjoyed your emails and your tweets and I want you to know that I appreciate all of the conversations that spun out of what you read."

Documentary maker embraces 'digital storytelling' to talk about tower renewal

DUNCAN MCALLISTER
life@metronews.ca
twitter: @nebulix

Toronto is becoming a city of condos. But well before the condo boom, many of Toronto's original concrete highrises were built between the 1950s and the 1980s. Thousands of units across the city were mixed with single-family homes and businesses.

The sad truth of the matter is that today these concrete apartment towers are aging and inefficient. With the Toronto region containing North America's second-largest concentration of these buildings, the City of Toronto has embarked on an initiative to renew these urban towers, and they're taking a long look at green infrastructure, transportation, waste management and energy consumption.

Emmy award-winning director Katerina Cizek has spent years examining Toronto's modernist highrises of the postwar era. She's the creative force behind HIGHRISE, a bold new multi-year, multi-media, collaborative documentary experiment at the National Film Board of Canada.

Cizek tells Metro, "We've been working on the NFB high rise project since the first idea came forward around 2008, when the city was publicly developing its ideas around tower renewal and we were inspired by that."

There are over 1,000 residential apartment towers found all across Toronto. Cizek explains that "Density really changes the way that we experience the streets, the way we experience our neighbours, the way we experience the city, and there's no question about it that density is the way the world needs to go because we're becoming more and more urban."

HIGHRISE breaks new ground in the digital realm. "We're moving towards digital storytelling and new ways of telling stories, new ways of delivering stories, new ways of communicating and organizing our relationships with the people that we make the films with, and also the people that are formerly known as the audience, now called users," says Cizek.

Scene from HIGHRISE. COURTESY NFB

Model suite from 15 Dundonald. COURTESY STARLIGHT APARTMENTS

If a building owner is committed to tower renewal, great things can happen. A relatively new player in the rental industry, Starlight Apartments has been acquiring a number of Toronto's aging concrete buildings and converting them to condo-like units.

Case in point is 15 Dundonald St. near Yonge. This 23-storey '60s-era building has undergone an extreme makeover. Starlight has upgraded just about everything imaginable including elevators, laundry facilities, the lobby and exterior landscaping.

The ultra-modern open-concept suites have been designed by Daniel Johnson Architect and include rich, dark-coloured cabinetry, stainless steel appliances, ceramic tile and hardwood floors. With this kind of renewal, you'd think you were living in a brand new condominium instead of a 40-year-old building.

CityLine unveiled a completely redesigned set this week. Along with an overall brighter feel, some of the new features include flat screen monitors for showcasing video segments and before and after makeover shots, streamlined clear chairs (no more bleacher style seats), an artificial "plant wall" to bring greenery to the space without the upkeep and even a new logo for the show.

The updated look seems to reflect a change in viewers over recent years. "Our audience is younger, and keeps getting younger," says host Tracy Moore. "I see more university students and young moms in the seats." Tracy's favourite feature? "The new hardwood floors! They make the whole space feel warmer." CityLine airs weekdays at 9 a.m. ET/PT on Citytv.

Property comes up short

LEGAL MATTERS
Jeffrey Cowan
home@metronews.ca
Principal at Cowan Law
Jeff@cowanlaw.ca

Q. I recently put an offer in on a property that I am planning on tearing down and replacing with a new home. The lot is nice and big but the house is nearly 60 years old, so basically, I was paying (quite a bit) for the land. The agreement set out the dimensions of the lot, which is shaped irregularly. I signed the agreement based on these dimensions and then uncovered a survey that indicated that the lot was substantially smaller than the measurements set out in the agreement. What are my options?

In this day and age of houses being in short demand, a lot of people are turning to purchasing existing homes and based upon the lot size, planning to tear them down and build anew. Basically, you should be able to rely on the dimensions of your lot as they are set out in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. If the actual lot size varies more than seven per cent less than it measures in the Agreement, you have a major argument on your hands. This is magnified by the fact that you purchased the lot, as opposed to the home as your primary goal.

You should engage your lawyer to determine if you want a release from the Agreement with a return of your deposit, a reduction in the purchase price based upon the decrease in the lot size or a litigation battle (which would be the least desirable of your options). Not a nice problem to be up against.

Decor ideas. Faded, chopped and dyed carpets make for some pretty artful floors

DESIGN CENTRE

The look of handmade is everywhere in design and acts as a great juxtaposition to modern furnishings and art in a room.

Without exception, the floors are the most ignored part of any decor scheme. Why not add uniqueness to your space by adding a vintage rug?

The world is full of old, tattered, outdated carpets and what better way to recycle than to reinvent them into something hip and attractive?

Vintage re-vamp

If the room is in desperate need of colour or pattern, then choose a glass or Lucite coffee table to show off your rug.

Too much colour for your liking? A wooden table or large ottoman will help break it up.

Use a rug to define an area in a room or hallway. Two or three short runners can break up a long hallway space and shorten the overall look while a collection of layered rugs can be easily moved around for a variety of looks.

In small spaces try to match the tone (light and dark) of the rug to the floor; it visually makes the space look larger if both match.

Patterned carpets are great for high-traffic areas as they show less wear and tear than a solid colour.

Don't excuse using outdoor woven rugs inside to take the wear and tear of a busy space.

The earth-friendly trend is to reuse and revamp worn and outdated rugs into something fresh and artful for our rooms.

Second-life rugs can be bleached for a sun-kissed romantic look or over-dyed with rich saturated Andy Warhol-style acidic colours. Damaged rugs can be cut into large pieces and sewn back together for a patchwork of pattern in a room.

Too bad the design world can't figure out how to re-invent the rust velour recliner.

Sweet dreams

Hello Charles, What is the three-sheet bed-making process and why is this important? Why do we need three sheets? Curious

Hello Curious!
The three-sheet bed method is an older method that was used particularly when wool blankets were on the bed and these items were rough against the skin.

The third sheet covers the blanket and gets tucked in just like all of the other sheets on the bed. This third sheet made the bed softer and nicer so that you didn't feel the rough wool against your skin, and more importantly you didn't dirty the wool blanket, as washing it was very difficult.

If the bed had a duvet, it was then folded in a "three-fold" at the end of the bed and only used on very cold nights.

Although not common today, when you see a bed made in this fashion, and sleep in a bed made with three sheets, it is fabulous, luxurious and such a treat!

Lastly, often the "third sheet" had a family crest or initials in the middle of the sheet, which visually looks breathtaking.

Set the stage for some heavy metal in your house

Interior design.
Reclaimed metal gets new life as modern furniture, decor

To meld a hefty hunk of steel, brass or iron into anything at all requires heat, brawny machines and dangerous tools. To turn it into a beautiful piece of furniture requires a real craftsman.

One of metal's advantages is its longevity, so sourcing recycled materials is something many of these designers do.

The appeal of their modern pieces is the link they forge between a sweaty, gritty, centuries-old craft skill and sophisticated contemporary design.

Rafael Avramovich of Brooklyn, uses geometric motifs to craft mirrors and cage-like lights.

"What fascinates me about metals is the endless possibility in terms of creating a shape, getting the texture I want, the finish colour," he says. His Living in Harmony collection uses blackened iron, bronze, and rusted steel to create sculptural, armillary-style lighting fixtures and edgy furniture. He plays with dimension in a Mondrian-esque mirror and a side table perched on staggered metal shapes.

Rafael Avramovich's Positive Space/Coffee Table, made of blacken steel finish with a circular glass top WORK AND DESIGN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

London-based furniture designer Jonathan Krawczuk experiments with the molecular composition of steel through a bowl that represents carbon and iron atoms in a 3D visual that's especially striking in bright primary colours. His Tarantula collection of powder-coated-steel, spider-legged tea lights is startling, and his Op-Art-inspired Cubic Bowl is functional sculpture.

Copper will be taking the stage through summer and into fall. Designers like the crossover aspect of the material; it's at home in a traditional living space as well as a modern one.

Dutch designer David Derksen of Rotterdam uses copper foil to craft a delicate, quilted-face cabinet perched on high legs, and faceted pendant lights.

David Shefa goes in a different direction: He uses galvanized iron and zinc-coated steel plumbing pipes to craft industrial-vibe tables, desks and floor lamps.

"By using an unexpected material, we achieve a new 'out of the box' design and get a chance to tell a different story," Shefa says of his lamps, which are whimsical, functional art.

Hostas are a great multi-use option for growers who like flowers that taste as good as they look. DEAN FOSDICK/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plants pretty enough to eat

Gardening ideas. Sweet potatoes for decoration? Some flowers and veggies do double duty

Sweet potato vines decorating window boxes? Blueberry plants prized more for their foliage than their fruit?

Some flowers and vegetables are as appealing in the home garden as they are on the menu.

"We generally are interested in something to eat when we grow vegetables. In some cases, however, certain vegetable cultivars have been bred and selected for their ornamental characteristics rather than their food quality," said Dan Gill, a Louisiana State University AgCenter horticulturist.

Ornamental sweet potatoes are a prime example, he said.

"They've been really popular in the last 15 or 20 years," Gill said. "The early ones can easily cover five square feet. Plant a few in a container and they will fill it in."

Sweet potatoes are vining plants, members of the morning glory family, so they work equally well as low-growing bedding plants, as ground cover, on climbing arbours or trailing from hanging baskets, he said.

"They can be aggressive, however. Breeders are developing hybrids that are less vigorous and that play well in mixed beds with other plants," Gill said. "They do produce an edible crop but they're not that tasty. Gardeners like them more for their coloured foliage."

Blueberries are another great multi-use option, said Scott NeSmith, a research horticulturist at the University of Georgia-Griffin campus.

"We're seeking a variety of novel blueberry types, with (an) emphasis on berry colours, plant shape and form, fall colour, dwarfness and other interesting traits," he said. "We want consumers to surround themselves with flavourful beauty."

Just as there are ornamental fruits and vegetables, so, too, are there edible flowers and garden beauties that provide culinary treats.

Some nominees: Hostas (blooms), daylilies (tubers, buds), dandelions (flowers when picked young), marigolds ("poor man's saffron"), begonias.

Also there are sunflowers (buds), yucca (petals, fruit), lavender (blooms), nasturtium (leaves, petals).

A couple of cautions, however, about adding flowers to the menu: "Never use flowers for garnishing unless you know for certain they are edible," said Gill, adding, "Some flowers, like the plants that produce them, are poisonous."

Also, do not eat flowers that may have been sprayed with pesticides or picked along roadsides. Wash flowers thoroughly before plating up, and eat them in small quantities.

Urban garden can be your inner-city oasis

Tips. Kate Gould tells you how to design your own piece of city bliss

life@metronew.ca

The smog, congestion and the intensity of city life can leave you yearning for your own outdoor sanctuary. Of course, with space coming at a premium, a balcony, terrace, patio or a patch of garden is a small luxury.

It's a compact area that often goes to waste but award-winning garden designer Kate Gould has some innovative ways to create your own piece of urban Eden.

Small space, big impression

"The best small spaces are those that are bold and strong", says Gould. She adds, "In fact, super-sizing most things is a trick I often employ to avoid a scheme appearing bitty. Trying to achieve too much in a tiny area can result in a dilution of the overall effect. Pare down the design, assess the absolute minimum that you need and work from there." This amounts to: "Large format hard landscaping on the ground, unified boundaries and pots, planters or water features and sculpture all in scale with the furniture and floor tiles," explains the British designer.

Illuminating ideas

Lighting is particularly important if you want to create a more relaxed mood for some al fresco entertaining. "Highlight architectural plants or a feature wall to create a focal point. Secondly, lighting trees produces dramatic effects particularly on species with interesting bark", describes Gould. If you're looking for something enchanting, "look for interior lit planters which emit light and use candles to create a welcoming ambience for dinner parties."

Private and intimate

Finding privacy in the city can be nigh on impossible, so designing an outdoor cocoon can seem like an attractive idea. "One option would be to extend garden fences with trellises and plant light, canopy trees like birch to create natural screening points. Alternatively, a large parasol over a table can create a certain amount of intimacy," suggests the expert.

Clutter buster

One of the major problems with compact spaces is finding the room to store outdoor accessories, particularly if you've got children's toys to keep out of sight. The solution: "Cube seating is ideal as the chairs will slot under the table when not in use. Built-in storage also works well. This generally consists of beach-style seat constructed into a wall with a wooden top that can be lifted to reveal a storage space inside", says Gould.

Don't fall foul of these

- Avoid using plants that are likely to grow too large for your space.
- Ensure your chosen plants can thrive in a particular environment.
- Limit your palette of hard landscaping materials.

Blur the line between inside and outside

French doors. Summer is here, so why not let in loads of light and give yourself a view?

With warm air, lush gardens and inviting patios in season, you're sure to be stepping outside as often as possible. Why not refresh the entry into your outdoor oasis by installing beautiful French doors?

Host Amy Matthews helps homeowners tackle projects themselves on Sweat Equity which airs weeknights at 11 p.m. ET/8 p.m. PT on DIY Network Canada. Get inspired by Amy's knowledge and expertise and see below for some tips to take on the French door project yourself this weekend.

Basic Overview

French doors are a lovely option for a patio entranceway as they give a visual connection between indoor and outdoor spaces. Light is able to flow inside and you have a beautiful view of your patio and garden.

French doors can be used with a retractable screen door system if desired which is popular for patios to keep bugs at bay. Blinds can also be installed to provide some additional privacy if preferred — these can be easily opened when it's time to let in the light.

Planning

French doors need more space than sliding doors so be sure to plan for space around the door swing before getting started. There is the choice of both in-swing and out-swing fittings so you can select the option that works best for your space. Measure the width of the door and use this to calculate the radius of the door's swing by starting at the pivot point to ensure you have enough space.

Also measure the jamb depth of the opening as you will want to buy a door that fits inside this depth. Standard French door styles are available to fit standard door openings and manufacturers usually also offer custom options for older, more unique spaces.

Installation Tips

Buying a pre-hung French door kit will make installation much easier as it eliminates many steps. Look to your neighbourhood home improvement store for options.

Always follow the manufacturer's guidelines and be sure that each door is hung plum inside the door frame so that they close tightly. Also look for French patio doors with a three-point locking system as it provides additional security by locking the doors to the head jamb and sill instead of simply locking the two doors together. Ensure that the swing path of the French doors is clear of any furniture or tools before beginning the installation.

Got curious neighbours? Just install blinds for some additional privacy. ISTOCK IMAGES

Once complete, grab that cup of coffee, step through your beautiful new entranceway, sit down and relax. Whether you're going inside or outside you're sure to admire your handiwork.

How to celebrate dad's big day

ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK
For Metro

Spending quality time with dad during Father's Day is a simple, yet thoughtful, gesture from the family. DESIGN PICS/THINKSTOCK

You and the kids have breakfast in bed planned. Now what else should you do for Father's Day?

Here are some other ways to celebrate the big guy this Sunday.

Make it from the heart

"To truly celebrate my role as a father, I would love to be recognized for the things I do day in and day out," says Jim Lin, the blogger behind busydad.com. And that recognition could even be as small as a homemade card or drawing telling dad why he really is the best dad ever.

"But if you want to indulge me on my special day, all I really want to do is spend the day enjoying my family without the usual distractions that come with it, such as chores, cleaning, watching what I eat and so forth."

However, if you are out of preschool and have grown out of making those homemade cards for dad, little heartfelt gestures go a long way — think taking dad out to do something he loves, from going for coffee to a game of tennis on the courts.

Keep it family focused

The point is to make it special and involve the family, says Chris Read, the blogger who writes canadiandad.com. "While a lot of guys would love to golf with their buddies or ride in a limo in Vegas, the real truth is that we have all year to do that stuff and this day should be about family," says Read. "Maybe give dad an hour to himself at some point during the day and that will be more than enough. Though, this depends on the lifestyles of the family."

Sleep, sleep, sleep

Give dad the ultimate gift any father can appreciate.

"On the actual day, a sleep-in is always a great way to spoil dad. They're a lot less frequent nowadays," says Nick Cheeseman, a father and blogger with Canadad (ncheeseman.blogspot.ca).

"For me, a day of family fun such as an outing to the zoo would be best the way to spend it. Just avoid maybe big brunches with the whole extended family or some time to watch the big game on the couch."

Daddy bloggers weigh in

Step away from the tie … and try getting something new for dad this Father's Day. Stumped for ideas? We asked four daddy bloggers for suggestions on what to give dad.

Dads in their 20s-30s

"Try spoiling dad with things like breakfast in bed or an hour at a day spa — yes modern dads also enjoy looking after their bodies well," says Stefan Korn, the blogger behind DIYFather.com. Many spas offer Father's Day packages that include services such as facials, massages, pedicures for men and more.

Dads in their 40s-50s

Help keep top of dad's mind while he is at work, suggests Warren Orlans, the blogger behind urbandaddy.wordpress.com. "Last year, I received a beautiful set of cufflinks, which are very much back in fashion for working dads," he says. Other ideas include a picture frame with the family's picture in it or a mouse pad with a picture of the kids on it.

"Give him something where he can be a kid again," says Nick Cheeseman, the Canadad blogger (ncheeseman.blogspot.ca). Think gifts such as a new football if dad likes to toss the ball around or a new Wii game just for him to play.

"Tickets to a sporting event or some advanced driving lessons — rally or race, not defensive — also works," says Cheeseman. "If you really want to splurge, how about a whitewater rafting trip with his buddies or a weekend kid free, especially with his wife."

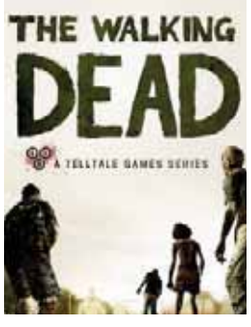
Dads in 60s and older

Give dad a bottle of his favourite drink, suggests Korn. Get a little creative if you can — pair a bottle of spicy vodka with a can of Clamato, celery salt and pepperoni sticks or a bunch of celery for homemade Caesars, or a six-pack of beer plus an offer to take him on a brewery tour.

If you really can't decide what to get him, give the choice to dad. "Dads love gift cards to tool shops, sporting goods stores and electronics," says Chris Read, the blogger with canadiandad.com.

"Yes, gift cards are impersonal but they are what we like, so don't feel bad!" ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK

Gaming. Let dad play till his fingers are numb



KAREN FALCON
For Metro

There is a whack of really great games (ESRB: M) out there and for a MSRP of $59.99, we encourage you to give your video-gaming dad the gift of hours of finger-numbing entertainment.

Diablo III
Microsoft Windows, Mac OS X

It's an intense action role-playing, dungeon crawling, hack and slash, online single-player, online multiplayer blockbuster. Now all dad has to do is lay cunning traps on his enemies, turn destructible objects against his foes, and battle the unholy forces of the Burning Hells. Easy, right?

Max Payne 3
Microsoft Windows, PS3, Xbox 360

A third-person shooter featuring single and multiplayer modes, Rockstar Games brings dad cutting-edge mechanics for precision gunplay and advanced new Bullet Time and Shootdodge effects.

No longer a cop, dad gets to play as Max — close to washed up and addicted to pain killers. Then, in an effort to escape his troubled past, he has to protect the family of a wealthy real estate mogul and he also gets to shoot stuff.

Lollipop Chainsaw
PS3, Xbox 360

Everybody knows dads love a good zombie hack and slash. Releasing just in time for Father's Day, Lollipop Chainsaw is the "un-deadly" story of sweet and killer chainsaw-wielding zombie-hunter Juliet Starling and her quest to uncover the root of a colossal zombie outbreak.

The Walking Dead: The Game
iOs, Mac OS X, Microsoft Windows, PS3, Xbox 360
MSRP: $4.99
Five Monthly Episodes

Is dad hooked on The Walking Dead? If so, he might need this downloadable adventure game based on the comic book and TV series. In it, dad will be forced to make meaningful decisions, explore his surroundings, protect the orphaned girl named Clementine, and fight for survival while enduring the true horror of the zombie apocalypse.

Ghost Recon: Future Soldier
PS3, Xbox360, Microsoft Windows

In this tactical shooter, dad will be armed to the teeth with an arsenal of real-world high-tech weaponry only in prototype today.

Specialized in every area of combat, equipped for survival, and trained in absolute discretion, he will be among the few who possess the power, the adaptability, and the cognitive fortitude of the future soldier.

For Metro

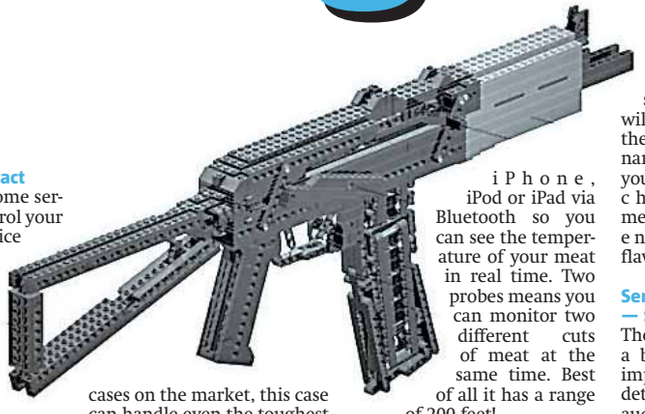
Forget the cologne and ties, true love is shown through technology! Here are some of the best tech gadgets guaranteed to put a smile on your dad's face this Father's Day.

Samsung Galaxy SIII — $149.99 with contract

A smartphone with some serious technology! Control your phone with your voice or send video files up to 1GB in size by simply tapping it against another Galaxy SIII phone. The front camera also tracks your eye movement, knowing when to dim the screen and when to keep it bright, even if you aren't physically holding the device. One of the hottest smartphones of the summer!

Ballistic Hard Core Case — $49.99

Ultimate protection for your smartphone. Ballistic cases have five layers of protection to guard against drops, fingerprints, scratches, and dust. It's also water resistant. As one of the highest rated cases on the market, this case can handle even the toughest work sites. Available for numerous smartphones.



New iPad — $519 and up

With a million more pixels than your HD TV, the retina screen on Apple's new iPad must be seen to be believed. Watch sports, read your favourite publication or download one of the more than 500,000 apps now available in the App Store. Still one of the best tablets on the market.

iGrill — $79.95

Never overcook another steak again! The iGrill cooking/grilling thermometer communicates with your iPhone, iPod or iPad via Bluetooth so you can see the temperature of your meat in real time. Two probes means you can monitor two different cuts of meat at the same time. Best of all it has a range of 200 feet!

Grand Grill Daddy Cleaning Brush — $50

Use the power of steam to clean that barbecue grill. Fill this brush with water and watch the steam remove baked on food, grease and old residue. No scrubbing required.

Of course, some dads will argue the remnants from your last charred meal only enhances flavours.

SensoGlove — $89.99

The first golf glove with a built-in computer to help improve your game. Sensors detect your grip, giving audio and visual feedback to let you know when your grip is too tight. If the glove wears out, simply transfer the computer to a new one.

LEGO Heavy Weapons — $16

A project for mature LEGO lovers. LEGO Heavy weapons gives detailed instructions on how to build a collection of truly impressive 1:1 scale working replicas of the world's most iconic firearms. A challenge for even the most serious builders.

Nest Thermostat — $250

Designed by the inventor of the iPod, Nest is a thermostat that learns your habits so it knows when to cool or heat your home, saving you money. Since Nest connects to the Internet you can control the temperature in your home from anywhere with your smartphone.

HYT H1 Titanium Watch — $47,000

An amazing blend of luxury and technology. Tiny bellows gently pump luminescent liquid around a ring on the face of the watch to display time. It's the first watch of its kind, gaining attention worldwide. Too bad very few will be able to afford this pricey timepiece.

Clockwise, from far left, SensoGlove — $89.99, LEGO Heavy Weapons — $16, Nest Thermostat — $250, Ballistic Hard Core Case — $49.99, iGrill — $79.95.

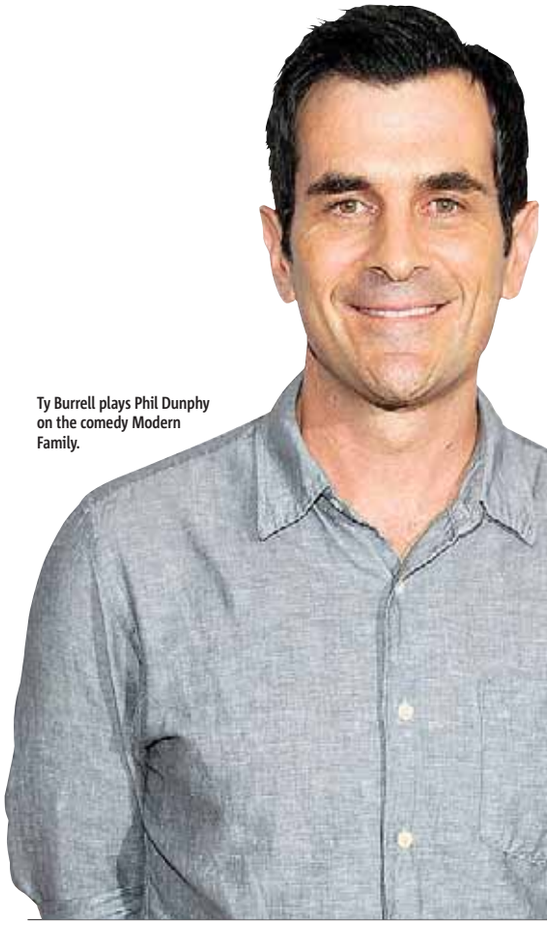
Father knows best

Pop culture. Dads on the big and small screen have shaped our behaviour over the years



Ty Burrell plays Phil Dunphy on the comedy Modern Family.

PETER DOYLE
For Metro

"I'm not a father, but I play one on television"

As much as we may like to deny it, popular television shows and movies shape our behaviour. Fatherhood is no exception. Here is a quick guide to some well-known fathers and how they influence our take on fatherhood.

Television

Television, like all popular media, has both shaped and reflected our views of fatherhood. In the 1960s, programs such as the Andy Griffith Show idealized fathers as upstanding men who were free from vice and able to support and love all members of the family equally.

In the 1970s, All In The Family broke the mould with a father whose foibles and bigotry provided comic relief. Despite his shortcomings, however, Archie Bunker managed to remain endearing.

In the 1980s and 1990s, fathers took on a much broader range, from the comically hopeless Homer Simpson, to the letter-perfect Heathcliff Huxtable on The Cosby Show and the tragically spineless Ray Barone on Everybody Loves Raymond.

Phil Dunphy of Modern Family puts an interesting modern twist on fatherhood called "peerenting" — talk like a peer, but act like a parent.

Movies

Blockbuster movies, not surprisingly, offer more dramatic guidance. Again, the model has changed from matchless heroes such as Atticus Finch in To Kill A Mockingbird and George Bailey in It's A Wonderful Life to more complex characters such as Ted Kramer in Kramer vs. Kramer, Calvin Jarrett in Ordinary People, and Lester Burnham in American Beauty.

Perhaps the strongest lessons from movie fathers have to do with what to avoid: The family business (Don Vito Corleone in The Godfather), the dark side (Darth Vader in the Star Wars series), and winters spent in an empty resort (Jack Torrance in The Shining).

Some of the most positive models of fatherhood come from the world of professional sports. Wayne Gretzky's father Walter, for instance, is a tireless volunteer who can no longer remember his son's exploits. Louis John Sutter, the patriarch of the Sutter clan, proves that quantity and quality can coexist. Six of his sons and two of his grandsons played in the NHL, earning a total of six Stanley Cups — and counting.

Byredo Sunday Cologne is for mom to give to dad. Zesty with a pinch of spice and incense, the scent is sexier than its name suggests — in fact, its original moniker was Fantastic Man. From $170, Holt Renfrew.

L'Oréal Paris Men Expert Hydra Energetic X Total Skin Cleanser will appeal to dad's inner little boy — he gets to wash his face with something black. That its charcoal complex eats up oil and dirt is a bonus. $10.99, drugstores.

Kiehl's Facial Fuel Sky Flyin' Foaming Multi-Gel can serve as refreshing face wash as well as a satisfyingly rich lathering shave foam. $23, www.kiehls.ca.

Givenchy Play Sport is as invigorating and clean as one might expect of a sporty scent, but in keeping with stylish frontman Justin Timberlake, also has a cool, elegant vibe. From $65, Shoppers Drug Mart, Murale and Sephora.

Clarins Men Exfoliating Cleanser combines salicylic acid and lava powder to keep pores clear, get rid of patchy dry skin, and leave dad's face feeling smooth and clean. $32, The Bay.

Gillette Fusion Proglide 3-in-1 Styler is a precision mash-up of Braun shaver and ProGlide blades to help dad keep his beard, goatee or 'stache in good shape. $25.99, drugstores.

Neostrata Men Soothing Moisturizer employs a soothing botanical complex to reduce redness and skin sensitivity, as well as a potent peptide to boost skin's repair process. $29, well.ca.

Schwarzkopf Professional [3D]MENSION Hair & Body Shampoo offers dad zippy yet gentle cleansing for hair and skin, and makes a colourful splash in the shower stall. $15, drugstores.

YSL L'Homme Libre is a light, modern scent for dad, crisp with a hint of sweet and subtle warmth. $89, department stores.

Portland General Store Whiskey Natural Aftershave Splash is a natural blend of aloe, sea kelp, blue-green algae, black willowbark and tea tree oil — and the scent is more woodsman than old boozer. $18, Indigo Books.

Gifts that keep on giving

Eco friendly. Ideas that both your dad and the planet will love

Father's Day is just around the corner, so this year, instead of the next "state-of-the-art" gadget, why not give the gift that keeps on giving — a healthy planet. What could be more meaningful and special than a gift that both your dad and the planet will love?

"Every day I work to help ensure that my kids will grow up with a healthy planet," said Gerald Butts, president and CEO of World Wildlife Fund (WWF). "A gift that contributes to that would really make my day."

To help you find the perfect gift, here are three planet-friendly ideas to get your creative juices flowing:

1 Adoption: Present dad with something he can enjoy, like a new member of the family. Buy him the WWF symbolic wildlife adoption kit. You can choose from an array of cuddly animals and donate to WWF's conservation work. Just $40 gets you the adorable plush animal, plus a recycled gift bag, a personalized adoption certificate, an informational booklet with a collector card and a $30 tax receipt. More information is available online at wwfstore.ca.

2 Eco-breakfast in bed: Cook up a delicious locally-sourced or organic breakfast and serve it to dad in comfort and style. Or treat him to a dinner out on the town at a local restaurant that offers a range of delicious and eco-friendly dishes. Organic breakfast recipes can be found online at organic-authority.com/organic-food-recipes/breakfast/.

3 Do-it-yourself recycled gifts: Make a father's day card or gift from recycled materials found around the house, or even in nature. Or you can look for a gently used gift from your favourite local vintage or antique shop. For great DIY eco gift ideas, check out everythingetsy.com/2011/09/25-hand-made-gifts-for-men-diy/.

Keeping your memories alive

Remembering. Plan a small tribute with siblings to honour your dad if he isn't around anymore

KELLY PUTTER
For Metro

Dad may be gone but there are ways to honour his memory this Father's Day.

"Father's Day can be a real trigger for people," says Vancouver counselling therapist Glynis Sherwood. "Society really focuses on the celebration, but it can be a painful reminder that your father is no longer with you."

Celebrations like Father's Day can elicit anniversary grief. This reaction typically occurs on landmark dates such as the anniversary of a death. But it can also hit during happy festivities such as birthdays.

If you are feeling vulnerable or you fear Father's Day could prompt depression, it's critical to make plans around this time, says Sherwood.

She recommends planning a small tribute with siblings to honour your father. Ask them to bring photos or videos of dad. Think about memorializing him by doing something he loved. If dad was a big walker, consider going on a hike. If gardening was his hobby, planting a tree in his name might help.

Creating new rituals that pay tribute to dad is another way to salute his spirit. One of Sherwood's clients goes skiing every year with her adult children to honour her husband and their father, an avid skier.

Memorializing dad online is a great way to commemorate him. Consider creating a website with a montage of photos or perhaps a video set to music. A memorial page on Facebook is an option. This allows family and friends to view the tribute and to potentially provide ongoing support.

If you prefer to acknowledge dad in a more quiet and reflective way, that's OK, too, says Sherwood.

"The important thing is what's going to help you," she says. "Some people do grieve very privately and there's nothing wrong with that unless it takes you to a dark place."

If dad is away due to a military assignment or other work commitments, there are options to mark Father's Day. Get in touch thanks to visual technology such as Skype. When it comes to communicating via email, send photos and videos.

"It's important to honour these milestones if they're meaningful to you," Sherwood says.

"And remember that you might feel lonely or worried because your husband or dad is in a dangerous situation but it's an opportunity for people to reach out and pull together."

Inspiration. Spend quality time with grandpa

If you think dads feel neglected after years of forgotten Father's Day fanfare, grandfathers may feel it even more.

Every Mother's Day, we lavish our mothers and grandmothers with heartfelt cards and flowers, but when Father's Day rolls around, some don't even get a call. Though most men will often shrug that it's "no big deal," why not make things better this year?

Get inspired with some of these gift ideas:

Quality time with you. Most grandfathers would prefer spending time with their loved ones to a cheesy joke card and No. 1 Grandpa tie. Tear out a page from your day planner and literally give your whole day to grandpa, participating in his favourite activities like fishing or birdwatching. Or buy tickets to watch a concert, movie, stand-up comic, or sports event together.

Donate in his honour. Show your appreciation to your grandfather and all the ways he helped to shape you into who you have become. Organizations like Christian Children's Fund of Canada (ccfcanada.ca) offer valuable gift items like fruit trees, mosquito nets, and clean water wells to help struggling families overseas. You can customize a card for your grandpa and show him how his generosity inspired you to help others.

MP3 player. Rummage through his old vinyl records and cassette tapes and find matching MP3s to load onto a player. Then show him how to use his new gadget so he can enjoy music he loves.

Photo gifts. Load all your favourite photos of children and grandchildren into a digital picture frame. Or frame a collage print of your favourite memories for display.

Put these ideas on front burner

Roundup. From a barbecue to tools, dad will be able to use these gifts throughout the year

With Father's Day just around the corner, choose gifts that he will use and love throughout the year. Take a look at this roundup of ideas in every price range:

1 A new barbecue — Did you know the latest models now come with accessories such as rotisserie kits and searing side burners? Look for a large cooking surface with enough BTUs to get your grate temperature up to 500 F to 600 F for optimal meat cooking. Brands such as Hamilton Beach, Kenmore, Char-Broil, Broil King and Hamilton Beach are popular choices for everyday grilling. And don't forget the tongs, meat forks and other grill implements.

2 Cordless drill — A must-have for any do-it-yourselfer dad. Look for a 19.2-volt size with a battery check function for light, powerful and reliable performance.

3 Cordless auto hammer — The best have a pivoting head to get into the tightest spaces and a charging station, like the Craftsman Nextec, which offers an additional 30 minutes with just three minutes in the charging dock.

4 Lawnmower — If dad is still struggling with a pull-start lawnmower, give him the gift of time and reliability with a push-button start mower. Exclusive to Craftsman, the new EZ line of mowers have right and left hand controls, ergonomic handling to ease hand fatigue and one-hand bag removal features. With the yard looking great in no time he will have more time for grilling (or golf).

5 Tractor — For the dad with land, let him ride in style. Look for tractors with the latest "tight turn" technology to get closer around trees and other obstacles so he will spend less time having to trim edges. The safest new tractors also have rear-mounted engines that provide better visibility and stability.

Is your father caught in the Dark Ages?

Technophobes. Old-school ideas such as books, tickets or classes is right choice for some dads

Your dad doesn't own a cellphone, use email, or purchase items online.

He often sighs wistfully aloud, remembering "the way things were" and scoffing when you momentarily stop talking with him to check a text message. Your dad is a technophobe and no matter how hard you try, he doesn't share your views on the conveniences of new gadgets and technology.

This Father's Day, instead of shelling out more cash on a new device he will never use, consider these ideas that will bring him comfort instead of stress:

• Books and magazines. Make note of novels, magazines, and series that dad enjoys and buy him the latest copy or a magazine subscription. If dad likes one author in particular, visit the author's website to see if they will be on tour for a reading or autograph signing.

• Concert or sports tickets. He will enjoy the quality time with you as much as he enjoys his favourite musician or sports team.

• Class enrolment. Has he expressed interest in learning how to fly a plane? Get him a flight simulation package or flying lessons. Does dad want to learn how to impress mom on the dance floor? Ballroom dance lessons for both should do the trick. Give the gift of learning so he can pick up a new skill.

• Charitable gift donation. If dad has everything he really needs, honour him by donating to a cause he is passionate about. Organizations like Christian Children's Fund of Canada offer practical gifts that save lives in developing countries, like a clean water well or mosquito nets that protect children from malaria. You can then personalize a card to show dad how he has helped others. NEWS CANADA

Food for thought

Father's feast. From breakfast in bed to a hearty barbecue, let dad indulge on his special day

ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK
For Metro

Is the best way to dad's heart through his stomach? If so, daddy bloggers dish on foods to spoil dad with this June 17.

Start with breakfast

In his seven Father's Days as a dad, Warren Orlans, the blogger behind urbandaddy.wordpress.com, looks forward to a special family breakfast.

"A good Father's Day starts with breakfast out and ends with a barbecue," says Orlans. Since the special day can be a busy one at restaurants, think about booking a reservation — if possible — to ensure dad has a seat.

Bring on the meat!

"Break out the barbecue and surprise me with a giant piece of Canadian beef!" says Chris Read, the Ottawa-based blogger behind Canadian-dad.com.

"If that's not possible, there are always ribs or pizza. My family has a tradition of ordering Chinese food for special occasions but that's not for everybody."

Nick Cheeseman, the Canadad blogger (ncheeseman.blogspot.ca), says steaks and bacon are always welcome to pop. "But you could make it a bit more adventurous with lamb shanks or Osso Buco," he suggests. Want to cook it yourself? Search Metro News' food section (metronews.ca/food) or Foodnetwork.ca's site for inspiring recipes.

Don't forget the drinks

Read also suggests switching dad's drinks up for the day. "Father's Day isn't your run of the mill day so we don't want run of mill beverages," says Read, who prefers a glass of Crown Royal whiskey and Coke or a bottle of Steam Whistle beer. If dad is a wine lover, buy a bottle of his favourite wine and pair it with a wine appreciation course.

In the end, indulge

This is what dad really wants, says Jim Lin, the face behind busydadblog.com. "All dad wants is to enjoy indulging in comfort food to his heart's content," he says. "We don't need a fancy dinner. We just need a hunk of meat, or something dripping with cheese, drenched with sugar, deep fried, or all of the above. We generally avoid these foods because we want to live as long as possible to take care of our families. But these simple indulgences make us happier than you would ever believe."

DAD-ISM #67

Hey sport, how about playing catch

PETER DOYLE
For Metro

With Father's Day fast approaching, the pressure is on to find a memorable gift. This year, instead of another tie or a bottle of single malt, find something that appeals to his inner sportsman.

The first step is to consider which sports interest your dad: Does he play recreational hockey? Is he a golfer, a cross-country skier, a runner? There is a set of equipment and apparel for each sport.

Once you have chosen a sport, you will need to learn if there is something he needs. A little research will help: Get in touch with one of his teammates or buddies (e.g., tennis or golf partner). While many men tend to buy what they want when they need it, most often settle for low- to medium-quality. This might give you an opportunity to go for the gold: Giving him something of a quality higher than he would buy for himself sends a clear message that you believe he is worth it.

If your dad is more fan than player, start by making a list of his favourite teams. Merchandising is the cash cow of professional sports and the array of team branded gear expands daily: From chairs and key chains to rubber ducks, and iPhone and iPod covers. Another option is to buy a television or Internet package so he can watch to his heart's content.

If your dad loves books, buy a large-format tome such as Sports Illustrated's The Baseball Book or The Hockey Book. If he is a serious reader, consider Stephen Brunt's Gretzky's Tears: Hockey, Canada and The Day Everything Changed, or Searching for Bobby Orr. A more sentimental choice is Fathers and Sons and Sports, a collection of short stories and reports from a long list of great writers.

If your father goes to the gym regularly, consider a good quality bag for sports gear or toiletries. A few other ideas: A bike computer or pedometer, or camping gear, such as a headlamp or comfortable camp chair.

The best gift of all, of course, is the gift of time. So take your dad to a game, watch a sports-themed movie together or just play some catch in the backyard.

Crafts. Handmade gifts that are made from the heart

KELLY PUTTER
For Metro

Nothing says you care quite like a personalized gift, so encourage kids to create their own mini masterpieces this Father's Day.

A perennial favourite is this tasty barbecue rub, says Oakville elementary school teacher Nina March. For this Emeril Lagasse recipe, combine 2½ tablespoons paprika with 2 tablespoons each of salt and garlic powder. Add 1 tablespoon each of black pepper, onion powder, cayenne powder, oregano and thyme and mix thoroughly. Pour into spice jars and you are good to go.

"Dads seem to like this gift so much that they often come back asking for the recipe year after year," says March, who has taught for 17 years. "When we do Father's Day gifts it reflects what kids think is important to their dads."

Coupon books are an inspired way to tell dad you love him. March encourages her students to design coupons that promise to make dad's life easier in some small way. Good options might be giving dad two hours of quiet time so he can watch the baseball game or assuring him you won't fight with your sibling at the dinner table.

Tech-savvy kids might enjoy this craft that fashions words into fun and funky artwork. Wordle.net lets children stretch their creative juices by thinking of expressive words that best describe dad. They might use dad, hockey, play and funny in their depiction. The website then spits out the words in different fonts, sizes and layouts. Print a copy and glue it onto construction paper. Children can make a puzzle-piece frame on card stock to complete the project.

No father can resist a world's-best-dad trophy. You will need two foam coffee cups, a five-inch square box, masking tape, one gold chenille stem, gold craft paint, black construction paper, glue and a white paint pen.

Glue the bottoms of the cups together. Once dry, wrap a piece of tape around the middle of the cups. Tape the entire box with masking tape. Cut chenille stem in half and insert into the sides of one cup as trophy handles.

Paint the cups and box in gold. Write "Word's Best Dad" in white on black construction paper and glue to the front of the box. Apply glue onto the bottom of the cup that doesn't have the trophy handles. Press on top of box and dry completely.

Drabek injured as Blue Jays swept by Nationals

Slump. Toronto loses for the sixth time in seven games

For the second time in three days, the Toronto Blue Jays watched with concern as their starting pitcher walked off the mound in pain, too sore to keep going.

Monday it was Brandon Morrow, forced out after just nine pitches by a strained muscle in his left side. Wednesday it was Kyle Drabek, exiting in the fifth inning with soreness in his surgically repaired right elbow.

Stephen Strasburg won his fifth straight start, Tyler Moore hit the first two home runs of his career and the Nationals beat the Blue Jays 6-2 Wednesday to complete a three-game sweep.

Manager John Farrell and the trainer came to the mound after Drabek missed on an 0-1 pitch to Michael Morse, the second batter of the fifth. Drabek walked off the field and Aaron Laffey was called out of the bullpen.

Drabek lost for the third time in four starts, allowing four runs and seven hits in 4 1-3 innings. He walked two and struck out one. Jose Bautista hit his 19th home run for Toronto against Strasburg (8-1), a solo shot to left, but the Blue Jays fell below .500 for the first time this season (31-32).

"You get swept at home, it's never a good thing," Farrell said. "We've got to play better, bottom line."

Strasburg allowed two runs and five hits in six innings. He walked one and struck out eight, raising his major league leading total to 100. He threw 89 pitches, 62 for strikes.

The Nationals (38-23) have now won six in a row.

Injury notes

Strength and stability tests showed no problems but Drabek acknowledged the episode was "pretty frightening."

- Drabek was scheduled to undergo additional tests later Wednesday. "It's just a little sore right now," he said. "Obviously I want to go back out and pitch but it's up to the trainers and coaches."

U.S. Anti-Doping Agency charges Armstrong

For Lance Armstrong, the doping allegations aren't going away. In fact, they're starting all over again.

The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency (USADA) has filed formal charges against the seven-time Tour de France winner, threatening to strip him of his victories in the storied cycling race.

Armstrong, who forcefully denied the accusations, could face a lifetime ban from the sport if he is found to have used performance-enhancing drugs. The move by USADA immediately bans him from competing in triathlons, which he turned to after he retired from cycling last year.

Armstrong has been dogged by doping allegations since his first Tour victory in 1999, but had hoped his fight to be viewed as a clean champion was finally won after U.S. federal prosecutors closed a two-year criminal probe in February without bringing any charges. Armstrong has said the investigation took a heavy emotional toll and he was relieved when it ended.

In its letter, USADA said its investigation included evidence dating back to 1996. It also included the new charge that Armstrong blood samples taken in 2009 and 2010 are "fully consistent with blood manipulation including EPO use and/or blood transfusions." Armstrong came out of his first retirement to race in the Tour de France those two years.

"Baseless"

Armstrong, who was in France while training for a triathlon, issued a statement dismissing the latest allegations "baseless" and "motivated by spite." Even though he last won the Tour seven years ago, the 40-year-old Armstrong remains a popular — if polarizing — figure, partly because of his charity work for cancer patients.

Jurors resume deliberations in Clemens trial

In their final attempt to convince jurors that Roger Clemens lied to Congress, prosecutors basically called his wife a liar, too. In his closing, Clemens' lawyer Rusty Hardin characterized the case as "a horrible, horrible overreach by the government and everyone involved" and hammered away at the government's evidence. Jurors, who met for 15 minutes Tuesday, resumed deliberations Wednesday as they work through a complex verdict sheet. Clemens, a seven-time Cy Young Award-winning pitcher, is charged with perjury, making false statements and obstructing Congress.

Late goal propels Portugal to win

Underperforming Portugal finally got a win. Underperforming Cristiano Ronaldo wasn't much help.

After a miserable run of four games without a victory and only one goal scored, the Portuguese came through with an 87th-minute goal from substitute Silvestre Varela to beat Denmark 3-2 in Group B of the European Championship.

"Those of us who don't play from the start must be ready to join in at any time and deliver what the manager wants," said Varela, who replaced Raul Meireles in the 84th. "We should keep on working like this to achieve our aims."

All four teams in Group B can still advance to the quarterfinals. After Germany beat the Netherlands 2-1 in the late match, the three-time champions lead the group with six points while both Portugal and Denmark have three.

Varela scored the winner three minutes from the end, spinning on the ball and shooting from short range. It was Varela's first international goal in four appearances.

But the winning strike came late, and after several missed opportunities from Ronaldo.

"We should have killed the game off earlier," Portugal coach Paulo Bento said. "We had enough chances."

Portugal also got first-half goals from Pepe and Helder Postiga at the Lviv Arena, but the Danes replied with a pair of goals from Nicklas Bendtner. The Denmark striker found the target just before halftime and then made it 2-2 in the 80th.

"To lose in the last five minutes is very tough for us to take," Bendtner said. "We felt that one point at that stage was a very good result for us."

Ronaldo is Portugal's captain and easily its best player. And at Euro 2012, the team is looking to him to reproduce the kind of goal-rich form he showed at Real Madrid last season, when he scored 60 goals.

But Ronaldo, facing a compact Danish defence that denied the Netherlands a goal in their opening win, didn't even take a shot until the 18th minute. That one flew wide, and the forward threw his arms in the air and apparently cursed at a divot in the pitch.

"Ronaldo is one of the best players in the world and is a very good captain and a very good leader," Pepe said. "I'm sure he will score soon."

Ronaldo was the team's top scorer in qualifying for the tournament, racking up seven goals. But after the final whistle Wednesday, while Pepe raised his arms and celebrated, Ronaldo crouched alone on the field, staring quietly at the turf.

Ambush marketing

Nicklas Bendtner could face UEFA action for ambush marketing after he scored his second goal in Denmark's 3-2 loss against Portugal. Bendtner's celebration Wednesday included lifting his shirt and dropping his shorts slightly to reveal a gambling firm's name on his underpants.

The bookmaker later tweeted a photograph claiming that Bendtner was wearing his lucky underwear.

German win has Netherlands facing early tourney exit

Euro 2012. Gomez nets two first-half goals as Germans sit atop tough Group B

Mario Gomez left the Netherlands on the brink of elimination from the European Championship, scoring both goals in Germany's 2-1 win Wednesday over one of its historic rivals.

Gomez scored both in the first half of one of the most anticipated showdowns of the tournament.

Robin van Persie pulled one back for the Netherlands in the second half but the defeat leaves the 2010 World Cup runner-up dangerously close to going home.

"Early on we had decent chances but the German goals came out of nowhere," Netherlands coach Bert van Marwijk said. "We defended badly. Our offence and defence did not connect.

Group B

Germany	Netherlands

"Germany really has an excellent team. It has power, creativity and scoring."

Germany, a three-time European champion, has six points from two wins but is still not sure of advancing from Group B, where three teams could end up with six points. Earlier, Portugal beat Denmark 3-2.

"We've taken a major step and opened the door to the quarter-finals," Germany coach Joachim Loew said. "Now we have our destiny in our own hands against Denmark."

The Netherlands, along with Germany, is considered one of the favourites but was drawn into a tough group. It now has lost both group games and needs to beat Portugal to have a hope. Germany will need only a draw against Denmark to win the group.

"The time just wouldn't pass, it remained standing (at the end of match)," said Gomez, who also scored the only goal in Germany's opening 1-0 win over Portugal. "They were pressing. It was close until the end but with Manuel Neuer in goal we can be a bit more relaxed.

"The expectations were great from our team even before the tournament and we've won six points against two classy teams, but it's a long way to the final."

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You'll hear what you want to hear today and ignore anything that does not fit in with your preconceived ideas. But why limit your thinking?

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Don't worry if you're not doing much on a practical level because this is a time for thinking and planning.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. This could be a stressful day, especially where relationships are concerned. Misunderstandings are likely but how you let them affect you is a matter of choice.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. When the pressure gets to be too much, you can get emotional. The planets warn that a small emotional explosion is likely today. But it's better than a big one later!

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. It's not like you to be emotionally distant but something has annoyed you and now you are keeping your distance from certain people. It'll pass.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. Try not to make promises you may not be able to keep today because if you let people down, they won't be too happy about it.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. Others are unlikely to react well if you are critical of their efforts today. They may be doing it wrong, but pointing out their faults and failings isn't likely to endear you to them.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. One moment you are too generous and the next you are too tough. It may be a reaction to other people's inconsistencies.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Colleagues and employers will look kindly on you today, so if there is anything you want from them now would be a good time to ask.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. You seem concerned with personal relationships at the moment but until the Sun moves into your opposite sign on the 20th, you won't be able to change much for the better.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. If you are not enjoying what you are working on then it's pretty obvious you are working on the wrong thing.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. You may be eager to show the world what you can do but if you are smart you'll hold off for a while. The Sun moves in your favour next week.
